"LADY LINDY"

"Lady Lindy," she's called. Until now, it was because of her close resemblance to Col. Charles, but perhaps she deserves it as the first woman to go over the great "Death Circle" on a non-stop jump. There are a mother, sister, and sweetheart waiting for her to come back from Europe.

Pleads to Save Girl

Refusing to allow his sweetheart, Olga Pawlishak, 17-year-old Russian beauty of Fair Oaks, to take the blame for the killing, Mike Popowich, 20, today entered a general plea of guilty in Criminal Court to the murder of Nick Anderson, "The Nuisance," as the principals called the slain man, was shot in the kitchen of the Pawlishak home about 2 o'clock the morning of January 8.

The plea was entered before visiting Judge A. B. Smith after a severance in trials of the two was granted and Popowich was arraigned first. Disposition of the murder charge against the girl will await the hearing on the guilty plea, testimony being taken to enable the court to fix the degree of the crime.

After the shooting the girl made a confession that she had fired the shots, according to the police, who expressed the belief that she was shielding Popowich. In this connection she claimed that her family lived under the evil influence of Anderson, who had been a boarder with them, and that he attempted to induce her mother to run away with him.

The first witness, Daniel R. Singer, of Edgeworth, testified he saw Popowich intoxicated at noon the day of the shooting, that Popowich had a revolver and threatened to "get" Anderson, as bad feeling existed between them for four weeks.

The witness said Popowich wanted Anderson to keep away from the Pawlishak home. Singer said he was on the porch of the Pawlishak home at Fair Oaks at the time of the shooting. He said he heard a shot and then looking through the door into the kitchen he saw Popowich fire at Anderson, the second shot he heard. A third shot was fired as he left the porch, the witness said. Anderson carried a gun, according to Singer.

The first victim of fireworks of the season is a 2-year-old girl, Gertrude Kaczka, of Glassport. She died in McKeesport Hospital early today after she had been burned Saturday in front of her home when a firecracker exploded, the morgue reported.

53 PLACES GO UNDER PADLOCK

Seventy-five proprietors of saloons, hotels and confectionery stores were before Judge F. P. Schoonmaker in Federal Court today for final hearings of padlock injunctions.

The court ordered decrees drawn in 53 cases, padlocking the places for one year, at the conclusion of the hearings. Three cases were continued.

Prohibition Administrator John D. Pennington previously had obtained preliminary injunctions against each of the places.

Owners were told in many cases they would be permitted to file application for modification of the padlock decree by posting bond. This applied to properties vacated by former tenants involved in the violations. Such modification would permit the owners to use the buildings for other than saloon purposes.

Judge Schoonmaker ordered one-year padlock injunctions against the following places and proprietors, as named in the bill of complaint:

Saloon, 5021 Penn avenue, William Giel, Jr., and Charles Sander.
Saloon, 124 North Sheridan square, John M. Shea.
Saloon, 4518 Liberty avenue, John Schroming.
Saloon, 2150 Wylie avenue, Harry Grob, Mrs. Harry Grob and B. Hertzburg.

COMMITTEE TO PICK TOWN HALL MANAGER

In an address before the Twentieth Century Club this morning, George S. Davison, chairman of the Town Hall Committee of the Chamber of Commerce of Pittsburgh, disclosed the fact that the County Commissioners will ask the committee to choose for them a competent and experienced manager for the public auditorium, if it is approved by the people of Allegheny county at the special election on the bond issue to be held a week from tomorrow.

Mr. Davison declared that the commissioners are anxious to have the town hall operated on a strictly business-like basis and for that reason want the advice of the committee in providing competent management.

The occasion of the address was a special meeting of the club, which is composed of the leading women of Pittsburgh, called by its president, Mrs. William Maclay Hall, to consider all of the items in the proposed $43,680,000 county bond issue. There was a large audience present

Road Bond Sale Is Spiked

HARRISBURG, June 18.—President Judge W. J. Hargest, of Dauphin County Court, today issued an injunction restraining State Treasurer Samuel Lewis and Auditor General Edward Martin from advertising and selling $3,000,000 worth of road bonds to take the place of bonds issued and retired as a part of the issue of November 5, 1918.

The court ruled that the order of Gov. Fisher on May 29, 1928, directing the Auditor General and the State Treasurer to prepare and print bonds in the amount of $3,000,000 to replace the bonds purchased and canceled by the Board of Finance and Revenue is without any constitional or legislative authority and therefore void.

The injunction was issued on the petition of William H. Montgomery, Jr., a taxpayer, who brought the suit for himself "and any other taxpayers who may wish to join."

MAIN RIPS, CRIPPLES TRIANGLE

Scores of downtown business places lost their water supply, cellars were flooded and considerable damage resulted when a 36-inch water main at Duquesne way and Ninth street broke at 7 a. m. today and sent thousands of gallons of water rushing through manholes in the streets.

Virtually every downtown building felt the effects of the break. It was on the main downtown loop, which extends down Duquesne way to the Point, to the Boulevard of the Allies, to Smithfield street and across to Ninth street. All buildings supplied by that loop were affected.

When the break occurred, E. E. Lanpher, managing engineer, bureau of water, dispatched a crew of men to the district to close two 36-inch valves and he expected that as soon as that task was completed a greater pressure would result in the effected area. He also set men to work closing nine 12-inch mains.

He could not say how soon the break would be repaired.

Three feet of water flooded Ninth street and virtually every cellar in that street between Duquesne way and French street was holding a foot or more of water. The situation became worse when the sewers clogged.

Girl Hops Sea To Wales

LONDON, June 18.—(AP.)—The trans-Atlantic monoplane Friendship, carrying the first woman ever to span the Atlantic by air, landed at Burry Port, Wales, at 12:40 p. m. today, just 20 hours and 49 minutes after taking off from Trepassey, Newfoundland.

The plane, which had been sighted 75 miles west of Ireland by the steamship America, landed in Burry Inlet because of a shortage of fuel. Wilmer Stultz, the pilot, bringing his ship down without difficulty close to shore.

GO ASHORE

Miss Amelia Earhart, "Lady Lindy," Boston social worker and co-pilot of the plane, came ashore with her companions in a motor boat, which set out immediately from the coastguard station.

The crew of the Friendship, which included Louis Gordon, mechanic, was in the best of spirits and looked none the worse for their 21-hour flight across the almost 2,000-mile stretch between Newfoundland and Great Britain.

Although the plane settled down off a swampy region some distance from the little town of Burry Port, which had never dreamed of its arrival, it was not long before hundreds of spectators were on the scene.

The fliers were in the best of spirits as they landed. Stultz told the Associated Press that the plane had been forced to land because of a shortage of fuel. He said that bad weather and a heavy mist accompanied the ship the greater part of the journey, while rain was almost incessant.

SEEKS MORE FUEL

Stultz immediately made preparations to obtain fresh supplies of gasoline to proceed to Bristol as soon as possible.

Asked if she did not feel proud of being the first of her sex to make the aerial crossing, Miss Earhart replied:

"Well, at any ratte I've realized my greatest ambition. I always felt sure the Friendship could do it and I was right. Conditions weren't very favorable, but I can honestly say I never felt the slightest anxiety.

"The plane behaved beautifully and there was never sign of engine trouble. The only real difficulty was that of steering the course."

Asked if any untoward incident had occurred on the long hop she said:

"We could get no wireless communication on the way, but we saw a steamer this morning and thought she would let somebody know we had crossed."

NOBILE SIGHTS 2 PLANES

KINGS BAY, Spitzbergen, June 18.—(AP.)—Two seaplanes which flew out to aid Gen. Umberto Nobile and five other survivors of the dirigible Italia apparently were within sight of the marooned men but failed to find them.

Capt. Riiser-Larsen and Lieut. Luetzow Holm returned to their base ship, the ice breaker Braganza, after an hour's flight and reported to Gen. Nobile's base ship that they had seen no trace of the silk tent he had painted red to aid them. Neither had they seen any of the survivors of the Italia.

Almost immediately the Italia's radio called the Citta di Milano and Nobile said his party had seen the planes searching for them. To aid further searches he gave his present position as 88.38 north and 27.12 east. This would put him about five miles to the east of Foyn Island.

The fliers at once prepared to change the motors of their planes and set out again to seek them at the new position.

Commander Romagna, of the Citta di Milano, said he believed that since Nobile had now definitely established his new location the party probably would be found on the Norwegians' next flight.

MABEL MAY CANCEL FLIGHT

International News Service.

HARBOR GRACE, N. F., June 18.—Disheartened because her flying rival, Miss Amelia Earhart, was first to make a non-stop flight over the Atlantic, Miss Mabel Boll, of the plane Columbia, intimated today that her own flight may be canceled. It is reported that the Columbia will fly back to the United States.

Pilot Oliver C. Le Boutillier said he preferred to attempt a flight to Europe, but that the future plans were uncertain.

"Our flight was a failure from the first due to misleading weather reports," said the pilot. "I believe the Friendship's crew depended largely upon meteorological reports from American ice patrol ships."

"I'm mighty glad that Bill Stultz and his friends are safe," he said. He admitted that he was disappointed at not having risked a takeoff yesterday when the Friendship made the hop from Trepassey and he made little effort to conceal his regret.

Weather conditions here were much improved today and the pilots indicated that the next step in their plans would depend upon Miss Boll.

MAIN

Downtown buildings today lost temporarily their water supplies and many cellars were flooded when a 36-inch main at Duquesne way and Ninth street broke and sent thousands of gallons of water rushing through manholes, into the streets, and to the river.

FIERCE

The water swirled fiercely in the streets in its rush to the river. Here, it boiled around parked automobiles on the Alleghany's bank. At one time, three feet of water covered Ninth street for a short period. The situation for a while was critical when sewers clogged.

GULLEY

The water wore deep gullies in the river's bank, such as shown here. City workmen were rushed to the scene to repair the damage and closed two other 36-inch mains and nine 12-inch mains to allo watermen to work over the broken m The piping's the main downtown water loo,

CHURCHES GO TO TOP ..I TRIALS

Declaring their intention of carrying to Washington urgent requests for immediate trial of those indicted in the recent Federal grand jury liquor probe, in the event local Federal officials fail to act, several hundred ministers, at a union meeting in the Second Presbyterian Church this morning, adopted resolutions demanding the suspension of Supt. Peter P. Walsh and other officers under indictment, expressed themselves satisfied with Magistrate A. D. Brandon's stand on the liquor question and voted unanimously to extend to Commander John D. Pennington and United States Attorney John D. Meyer their congratulations for their activities against "commercialized vice" in the city.

The ministers also urged District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner to investigate slot machine activities in the county.

Committees will be appointed to convey the resolutions in person to those concerned. A committee of three will call upon Attorney Meyer and if he fails to act within a reasonable time to have the booze cases brought to trial next month, the committee will proceed to Washington to lay the matter before the United States Attorney General, it was declared. Another committee of three will call upon Director James M. Clark and Mayor Charles H. Kline and insist that these officials carry out the suspension of the indicted police officers.

"We believe that peace cannot be preserved, justice administered and laws enforced by peace officers and magistrates under federal indictment. We, therefore, respectfully but most urgently request Director Clark to suspend, until such time as they shall be adjudged innocent or guilty, Supt. Peter Walsh and his associates," the resolution reads in part.

and speakers, in addition to Mr. Davison, discussed other phases of the large improvement program.

Mr. Davison's address was as follows in part:

TO BENEFIT CITY

"The day that our town hall or public auditorium is opened for the first time will mark one of the greatest advances in the history of this community. It is impossible to list all of the benefits which will accrue through having such a publicly-owned and operated structure. It has been the history of public auditoriums in other places that they constitute one of their principal assets.

"In the bond issue election campaign which is now going on, I have made several addresses to various audiences, and it has been inevitable that I refer very largely to the great success of the public hall in our neighboring city of Cleveland. At the time that building was first projected, about eight years ago, there was considerable opposition to it from well-meaning citizens. It was charged, for instance, that it would be a great failure. It was asserted that the revenues from the public hall would not be sufficient to pay operating charges on the building; and that, therefore, it would be more or less a white elephant on the hands of the city.

"None of these predictions was realized. The public authorities of Cleveland did not make a single political appointment in connection with the operation of their auditorium. The result has been that in no single year, beginning with the first year, did the revenues from the public auditorium of Cleveland fall below the operating expenses. As time has gone on and more attractions were booked, the revenues have substantially increased, and in a recent year the sum of $180,000 was realized from rentals over and above the maintenance charges for that year.

TO BAR POLITICS

"There is no question in my mind but that our public auditorium in Pittsburgh will be managed along the same business lines as the one in Cleveland. In fact I know that the Cleveland authorities are willing to share their present management with us. Further, I have the assurance of the County Commissioners that the Town Hall committee of the Chamber of Commerce may, if it desires, have the right to choose the manager. In proof of this attitude on the part of the County Commissioners, let me point to their selection of the director for the North and South parks. Mr. Phil B. Ris is not a political appointee; in fact, he was not even a resident of Allegheny county. The Commissioners selected him because of his peculiar qualifications for the position.

"I recall the fact that the City of Pittsburgh contributes large sums of money annually for the maintenance of Carnegie Library; the budget figure for 1928, for instance, is $510,000. No one will seriously charge that the Carnegie Library is operated on a political basis.

"Assuming that our Town Hall would be provided by the people using their own credit for the $6,000,000 required, an average annual payment of not more than $450,000 would pay the interest and retire the issue of bonds in 30 years. I am quite certain, based upon the experience of Cleveland and other cities, that nothing additional will be required for maintenance, as the rentals will more than take care of this factor. We are suggesting that the county obligate itself for the Town Hall for less than what the city pays toward Carnegie Library.

"The taxpayers of the City of Pittsburgh are contributing $791,000 for the year 1928 in the maintenance of parks and playgrounds. The influence of such projects might be said to not reach beyond the City of Pittsburgh, but who is there to deny that the beneficial effects of the Town Hall will reach to the uttermost parts of the country. The City of Pittsburgh will furnish two-thirds of the money necessary for the Town Hall and it would appear to be but a small burden upon the people living outside the city, to whom the Town Hall will be available, to support it to the extent of one-third of its cost.

OTHER HALLS NOT ADEQUATE

"The question has been asked why do we not use Memorial Hall as a town hall, or why not enlarge the Logan Armory and use it for that purpose. To those who have studied this proposition, the answer is very simple. Neither one of these buildings could be used or adapted for use as a public auditorium. A public auditorium must have a large stage to house great attractions like 'The Miracle.' It must have a large amphitheater for the audience, with slightly raised seats, after the manner of theaters. It must be so arranged that there will be different seating capacities so as to provide for various kinds of productions or attractions which will use it, depending upon the drawing power of the attractions. It must have a large room for flower, merchandise, industrial and other shows like in the case of Cleveland, beneath the auditorium proper. It must have committee rooms and offices for the use of conventions that will hire the hall. It requires one hundred and one especially adapted things which do not exist in either of the two buildings mentioned, and it must be designed for these uses in advance of erection.

"The indirect benefits to a community as a whole through the holding of conventions in the town hall cannot be too strongly emphasized. Last year there was a convention of the Road Builders' Machinery Association at the town hall in Cleveland. There were 22,000 persons who went to that convention and remained in Cleveland a full week. This is a larger gathering than that which attended the Republican national convention in Cleveland in 1924. So many persons cannot remain in any city for a whole week without spending in that city a large sum of money. This increases the natural circulation of money in a community and benefits everyone in it to some degree.

"Pittsburgh needs the town hall. It will be worth every cent it costs. We hope that all citizens will go to the polls on Tuesday, June 26, and vote not only for the town hall but for all of the other meritorious items in the Allegheny county bond issue."

How Strong Is Al Smith In Western Pennsylvania?

TO answer this question, that is heard everywhere in Pittsburgh today, the Sun-Telegraph prints a ballot below.

These ballots will not appear every day, but occasionally; and on those days no extra papers will be delivered to any agent nor will papers be sold in bulk to any individual or organization. Ballots received in bulk will not be counted. No more than three in one envelope. Thus a fairly accurate estimate of the relative strength of Hoover and Smith may be determined.

Watch the Sun-Telegraph for an early announcement of the results.

WHOSE MOTHER IN MORGUE?

By ALMA SIOUX SCARBERRY.

A woman of evident refinement lies, unidentified, in the county morgue. Her wedding ring marked "July 22, 1886, R. A.—L. M. A." should identify her. It is an oval onyx with a small diamond in the center.

Struck by an automobile in Babcock boulevard, near Millvale yesterday, the woman, who appears to be about 65, died instantly. County detectives arrested Frank Weber, of Millvale, as the driver. The body was taken to the morgue about 7:15, and no one had appeared this afternoon to claim it.

There is no mistaking refinement in the quiet white face. Long white hair hangs below her waist. Her brow is high and well shaped. The nose is slightly Roman.

An expensive black silk coat trimmed with black fox fur, and a powder blue hat with straw edge and silk top, trimmed around the front on deeper blue flowers are a strange contrast to the little white house dress with black dots she wore when killed. She looks as though she might have been a housewife who, wanting a little air, slipped the coat over her dress and went out for a stroll. This is strengthened by the fact that there were but two cents and a key in her black silk purse trimmed with silver beads.

A plain signet ring and a lavaliere with a small garnet may help in the identification. Her coat has the mark of a local store.

NAB POLICEMAN IN ROBBERY

ELLWOOD CITY, Pa., June 18.—Charged with receiving stolen goods, H. P. Baader, patrolman, was arrested and released on bond, the fourth officer to be arrested in the robbery scandal. Former Patrolman W. E. Kanalley, who was dismissed from the force and instigated the present probe, was arrested by local police as a fugitive from Ohio. He was ordered released by a justice of the peace before whom he was arraigned because there was no warrant for his arrest.

SMITHS, JONESES AFOUL LAW

The chicken fight season hopped off to a foul (begging your pardon, please) start in McKees Rocks yesterday, when Agent E. M. Smith, of the Humane Society, and Alderman Ira Edmundson descended upon the Hipper Dipper Club in McKees Rocks with a bevy of constables, and announced that the birds might legally supply eggs, but not entertainment.

They—the law—arrested 19 men and one woman, whom Mr. Smith described as being 55 and attractive. He said she explained she had gone to the festivities because of a quarrel with her husband. She was the only woman present.

Mr. Smith said that, by a remarkable coincidence, most of the persons present were named Smith (no relation) or Jones. They will be arraigned for hearing Wednesday. The Hipper Dipper Club rooms held a charter issued to the Chartiers Valley Gun Club, Smith said.

Four chickens were seized tenderly and removed to the Humane Society's home for rescued fowl, there to while away their remaining days far from the maddening crowd and the clank of spur against spur.

HEFLIN RIPS SMITH IN SPEECH

International News Service.

ALBANY, June 18.—The biggest gathering of the Ku Klux Klan ever held in Albany county listened yesterday to United States Senator J. Thomas Heflin, of Albama, continue his attacks on Gov. Smith and Roman Catholicism almost within sight of the towers of the state capitol.

It was a colorful crowd of 10,000 that gathered in a natural amphitheater just southwest of the Albany city line to hear the traditional enemy of New York's Governor assail him as a Democratic presidential candidate possibility. Pointed hoods and flowing robes of the Klansmen and Ladies of the Kamelia, the women's organization, vied with odd uniforms of "pioneers," "rangers" and various drill groups and the more familiar gray of the state troopers, out in force by direct orders of Gov. Smith to see that Senator Heflin was not heckled or interfered with.

The troopers were under the personal command of Maj. John A. Warner, the Governor's son-in-law, who shook hands with Senator Heflin when he arrived on the scene for a two-hour address.

The Senator predicted that the Catholic Democrats might have a surprise in store for them at the Houston convention, even though the nomination of Gov. Smith for the presidency is freely prophesied now.

"In 1924 in New York City," he said, "they split the convention wide open and killed the Democratic party. They're going to get a taste this year of the same sort of medicine."

Senator Heflin objected to Gov. Smith as a Democratic candidate on the following grounds, in addition to his Roman Catholicism:

The governor's connection with Tammany Hall, "the most corrupt political organization that ever had its existence in the world."

The fact that the governor is "not only a wet, but a soaking wet."

The governor's views on immigration—"restricted immigration is good for America; open immigration is good for the Catholic Church."

The fear that there might me war with Mexico if Smith were elected, because of the religious difficulties there.

I was fond of Pittsburgh before I ever saw it, because one of my college roommates was from there, and in addition to having one of the most picturesque lines of profanity I had ever heard, he was a prince and also a brilliant scholar. Since then I have visited Pittsburgh many times, and without any desire to cast bouquets, can frankly say that I have found the people of your city as sweeping in their hospitality as any of the great Arabian sheiks whom I encountered while with Col. Lawrence.

My aerial wanderings have enabled me to look down on most of the important cities of the world from the sky. Incidentally, that is by far the best way to get your first view of any city, or, for that matter, any great spectacle of Nature. Pittsburgh from the clouds ranks as one of the most amazing sights on this planet. * * * It is as spectacular in its way as Constantinople or Paris or Moscow.

As to my impressions of Pittsburgh as an industrial community——well, I have visited all the other centers in the world where the principal industries are the same as yours, and, as everyone knows, Pittsburgh far overshadows them all.

Struck by an automobile while playing in Irwin avenue, Hays borough, last night, Lavonne Ebbitt, 9, of 1915 Penn avenue, Wilkinsburg, was fatally injured. She died a short time later in the Homestead Hospital. Police say that Joseph Witzoski, of Irwin avenue, Hays was the driver. He was arrested.

Benson Rice Ingram, 41, of 1421 Chateau street, North Side, was killed late Saturday when hit by an automobile near his home. According to Woods Run police, the automobile was driven by James Kuntz, 25, of 1719 Lowrie street. Kuntz was arrested and will be turned over to the coroner today. Bertha Barker, 20, of 1418 Hopkins street, and James Shenon, 24, of 1916 Beaver avenue, who were riding with Kuntz, were arrested on suspicious person charges and will be held as material witnesses, police say.

RABBI DIES

Injuries suffered in an automobile accident caused the death of Rabbi Theodore Marchbin, 60, of 105 Third street, McKeesport, in the McKeesport hospital yesterday. He was injured last Thursday when hit by an automobile truck in Fifth avenue, McKeesport. The driver of the machine will appear before the coroner today to give bond pending the inquest.

Stanley Bill, 10, of 2 George street, McKees Rocks, died in the Dr. S. M. Black Hospital yesterday from injuries received on April 25 when he was struck by an auto in Pine Hollow road. Hospital and morgue attaches said they were ignorant of the circumstances attending the accident and an investigation to determine who drove the auto was started.

Run down by an automobile in South Main street yesterday, Edward Stansbury, 8, of 178 Wabash street, was reported to be recovering in the St. Joseph's hospital. His condition is reported as serious and it is believed that he may have suffered a fractured skull. Patsy Baccar, 28, of 5806 Bryant, street, driver of the machine, is being held by police.

Believed to have been intoxicated and to have staggered in front of an automobile in Brownsville avenue yesterday, Peter Sedlock, 37, of 128 Excelsior street, was injured slightly. After being treated at the South Side Hospital he was arrested on a drunkenness charge.

Riding his bicycle in Knox avenue, George Young, 16, of 69 South Nineteenth street, was struck by an automobile and suffered a bruised right leg. He was taken home by William H. Schnetzer, of 322 Lamarido street, said to be the driver of the car. Police say the accident was unavoidable and no arrests were made.

NO REGONCILIATION

LADY NORTHESK

There will be—absolutely, too!—no reconciliation between Lord Northesk, Englishman, and Lady Northesk, the former Jessica Brown, "Follies" girl, who has entered divorce proceedings against him in England. The lady's in the United States to see her parents.

MAN, GIRL DIE IN AIR CRASH

NASHUA, N. H., June 18.—(AP.)—Marcel Theriault, of Nashua, former state Senator, and Miss Katherine Thomas, 22, of Nashua, were burned to death when an airplane in which they were passengers caught fire and crashed to the ground yesterday. George Lennox, of Wichita, Kan., the pilot, was badly burned and is in a critical condition in the Nashua Hospital.

Hoover Licked Politicians, Says Will

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 18.—Did you ever see a town after they had just finished sweeping out a convention? The Republicans have all gone back home to collect. You know they don't pay off till after you have voted. The farmers that were supposed to be so mad are all in good humor now; they got a good rain yesterday. That's their only relief. The Republicans picked absolutely the strongest ticket they could have. Hoover has a tremendous popularity with the people. It was the politicians that were against him. He licked them. Now watch em' start telling how great he is. On to Houston to nominate another presidential candidate. Yours, turned to report they had been unable to locate the evidence and stated that if the case were held over they would try to present it in court later.

Today Lieut. Sam Graham produced two slot machines and a basket of liquor before Brandon in Morals Court and blamed the two policemen for not having offered the stuff in evidence on Sunday.

District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner said that he will see Meyer today, and also will confer with Magistrate Brandon and aid him in forcing presentation of the evidence.

Meyer told the court he was sorry for the woman and would be willing to repay her, but he was told it was too late. He and his bartender, John White, were held for court in $2,000 bail each on charges of violating the Snyder act and with maintaining gambling devices.

Meyer said the three collectors came to him and offered to put in the machines, giving him 40 per cent of the profits. They returned every few days to collect money and divide the profits, Meyer said. Meyer declared he had been a witness before the Federal grand jury and had told them the same as he had told in Morals Court yesterday.

As soon as all the testimony taken before the Federal grand jury has been transcribed, United States attorneys will confer with District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner and turn over to him all testimony pertaining to gambling. This will be in about two weeks, it was said.

RIVALS

Although selected as the beauty queens of neighboring rival cities, Vera Tomikel, Sharon, and Mary Skertic, Farrell, are chummy. They will represent their communities in the Pennsylvania beauty contest, Conneaut Lake Park, in August. Nearly every city in the state is to have its "prettiest girl" in the contest.

Flew Blind Most Of Way, Pilot Reveals

International News Service.

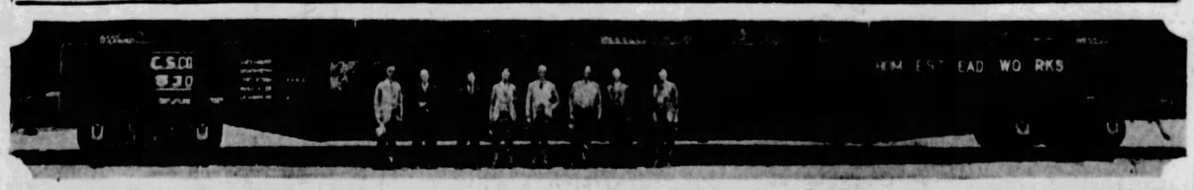
LLANELLY, Carmarthenshire, Wales, June 18.—Beset by fog and bad weather, the trans-Atlantic monoplane "flew blind" most of the way across from Newfoundland to Wales, Pilot Wilmer Stultz declared here this afternoon.

After Miss Amelia Earhart, Pilot Stultz and Mechanic Louis Gordon had emphatically declared they would not leave the plane, Stultz changed his mind and came ashore to try to speed up the search for airplane gasoline.

Miss Earhart and Gordon remained in the plane.

"No one was ever more thankful than I to see the coast of Wales," said Stultz. "We had a bad trip all the way. In fact, we were flying blind most of the way."

65-FOOT GONDOLA BUILT HERE IN EXPERIMENTATION



Carnegie Steel Company, experimenting at its Homestead beam works, has constructed and sent east a 65-foot gondola car to the Atlantic City convention of the American Railway Association, Mechanical Division. Railroaders there will experiment with the car, which is 20 feet longer than the average gondola. A 65-foot gondola, says Carnegie, is rare indeed. Primarily the car's to be used for long beams, etc.

SMITH FAVORITE ON SOUTH SIDE

Along Carson street, South Side, Smith proved to be a three-to-two favorite over Hoover in The Sun-Telegraph's straw vote, the former getting 127 ballots and the latter 82. The vote for the two candidates is now practically tied, with 1,411 for Hoover and 1,363 for Smith, a difference of only 48 ballots.

SMITH	127
HOOVER	82

The straw vote has been taken in various sections of the city and community and gives a representative indication of sentiment. The totals are as follows:

	Hoover.	Smith.
Oliver Building	267	167
Westinghouse plant	302	300
Ohio street	131	202
Imperial	55	52
City-County Building	75	80
Seventh street	123	117
Medical profession	63	38
Strip district	38	137
East Liberty	129	77
Street cars	20	37
Traffic Court and No. 6 Police Station	26	39
Carson street	82	127
Total	1,411	1,363

Of the 209 persons who balloted in The Sun-Telegraph's straw vote in Carson street, 134 of them said they voted for Coolidge in 1924 and 12 said they voted for Davis. This gives a total of those voting in the straw vote canvass of 1,617 for Coolidge in 1924 and 302 for Davis.

The Carson street canvass included shops, homes and both the Market House and the South Side Terminal.

BOY DROWNED IN RESERVOIR

UNIONTOWN, Pa., June 18.—Michael Yanko, 12, of Fairbanks, fell into a reservoir near his home yesterday and was drowned. David Martin, camper, whose clothing was found on the bank of Cool Spring reservoir is believed to have been drowned, although there were no witnesses, nor has his body been found. A third fatality in the district on Sunday, was that of James W. Scott, 4, crushed at Lemont, when his father's machine, backing out of the garage, ran over him.

President's Alma Mater Very Wet

AMHERST, Mass., June 18.—(AP.)—Only three members of the Amherst College graduating class do not drink, according to the "senior statistics" published in the "Amherst Student" during commencement. Those who do drink are numbered 140, the "statistics" indicate. John Coolidge, the President's son, is a member of the class.

WORK STARTED ON NEW WAYNESBURG RAILWAY

WAYNESBURG, Pa., June 18.—Waynesburg was excited today when work was started at the fair grounds on bunk houses and field offices for the construction force of the new Chartiers Southern Railway. For years Waynesburg has pleaded for a standard gauge railroad, to open a rich coal territory.

Fay King Finds Like-Age Friendships the Best

MY NAME IS DOROTHY
MY NAME IS JIM!
CHILDREN OF LIKE AGE ARE INTERESTED IN EACH OTHER!
IT'S ALWAYS NICE TO SEE A WELL MATCHED YOUNG COUPLE TOGETHER!
OLDER PERSONS HAPPY TOGETHER SEEM YOUNGER THAN WHEN THEY BORE YOUNGER COMPANIONS AND SEEM ANCIENT BY CONTRAST!
FAY KING

By FAY KING

IT IS NORMAL and natural for persons of a like age to seek each other.

In all gatherings, children approach each other. Youth glances with interest at youth. Older ones seek the older.

Children find joy in their innocent companionships. Their interests are in common.

There are tops and toys and airships and comics to talk of. Games they like to play. One's heart is glad to hear their happy laughter and see their joyous fun.

Young persons are a delight to watch dancing, strolling, enjoying a sweet young comradeship.

It is pleasant to see older folks together, gay and contented. Life is a series of experiences. We are graduated from grade to grade much as one does in school.

The foolish older ones seek only youthful companions. They think it makes them seem younger.

It does not. It makes them seem much older by contrast.

Only folks who continue to find life interesting and have good times in their own crowds are the ones of whom you hear young people say:

"Why, they're just like a bunch of happy kids together!"

And they mean it!

4 W. VA. BOYS HURT IN MOTOR CRASHES

WASHINGTON, Pa., June 18.—Four West Virginia boys were injured in collisions between motorcycles and automobiles on highways near here yesterday. Tim Garcia, 20, and Frank Nutt, 17, both of Clarksville, were hurt when their cycle crashed into an auto at Wolfdale. H. C. Monts, 27, and Joseph Martin, 27, both of Cassville, were injured in a similar collision at Coon Island.

of reading The Sun-Telegraph Classified Advertisements. Many a home has in it a bargain selected from these columns.

THOUSANDS ASK JUBILEE TICKETS

They're coming. Boys and girls from all parts of Pittsburgh and the suburbs and the surrounding country and towns are sending their coupons for free tickets to the Sun-Tele Jubilee in National Amusement Park, above Aspinwall, where 50,000 young friends of The Sun-Telegraph will have the time of their lives on Tuesday, July 3.

The Sun-Tele Jubilee Manager is the busiest man in Pittsburgh.

He knew that he had a lot of loyal friends in the Sun-Tele family, who would come to the big picnic, but when he heard from so many thousands of boys and girls in the first batch of mail received after the printing of the Jubilee Coupon Saturday, he realized that the picnic is to be a success and that he and everybody are to have the jolliest of good times.

When he saw the piles of letters coming in with coupons from the Sun-Tele, all nicely filled out with the requests for free tickets to the big outing, the Jubilee Manager realized, too, that all the 50,000 boys and girls he had provided for will be there. Therefore, he advises all his young friends to mail in their coupons at once because when 50,000 tickets shall have been issued, the latecomers are likely to be disappointed.

The tickets of admission to the park carry 14 coupons to the various amusement attractions and also entitle the holders to a free balloon and French Vanilla Bar, "the Cream of the Valley."

Remember, only one ticket for each coupon; if two or more tickets are wanted in a family or a group of boys and girls, let each boy and girl fill out a separate coupon. But it will be all right to mail several coupons to the Jubilee Manager in one envelope. Write your name and address plainly.

Men and Women! How Much Weight Would You Like to Quickly Gain?

One Very Thin Man Gained 28 Pounds in Eight Weeks

A woman quickly loses her charm and attractiveness when she gets below normal weight.

Her health also is apt to suffer and that means a decrease in energy and vivacity.

Some women have become so thin that people call them scrawny or skinny. Many underweight women are more to be pitied than blamed—they don't know what to do to gain flesh and attractiveness.

People are underweight because the food they eat is not assimilated—does not get into the blood to build firm, healthy flesh.

Correct this condition and weight will undoubtedly go to normal and that haggard look and flabby skin ought to disappear.

Burl Craig, of Indianapolis, speaks highly of McCoy's Tablets as a builder of weight and strength. Read This Letter:

"I highly recommend McCoy's Tablets. They have helped me wonderfully. Before I took them I felt tired and run-down and lazy and didn't want to do a thing but lie around, now I feel fine and work all the time and have gained both weight and strength, thanks to McCoy's Tablets."

McCoy's Tablets are sugar-coated and easy to take—old folks and children who are run down and thin, take them readily, but read McCoy's fair and square offer.

McCoy takes all the risk—read this ironclad guarantee. If after taking four 60-cent boxes of McCoy's Tablets or two one-dollar boxes any thin, underweight man or woman doesn't gain at least five pounds and feel completely satisfied with the marked improvement in health—your druggist is authorized to return the purchase price.

The name McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets has been shortened—just ask for McCoy's Tablets at May's Drug Stores or any drug store in America.

DOCTORS MEET

HOMEOPATHY BOOMED AS SUCCESS

Opening the eighty-fourth annual convention of the American Institute of Homeopathy at the Hotel Schenley today, Dr. G. Harlan Wells, of Philadelphia, president, in his annual address spoke in an optimistic vein of the growth of the school of medicine. Hundreds of physicians from all parts of the country cheered Dr. Wells' remarks.

REPORTS READ

Eight scientific papers are being read today at the bureau of drug pathogenesis sessions, Dr. John R. Shoemaker, Cuyahoga Falls, O., chairman. The speakers are Dr. G. W. Boericke and Dr. William A. Pearson, Philadelphia; Dr. Linn J. Boyd, New York; Dr. Gertrude Meck and Dr. Carl Rush, of Cleveland; Dr. E. B. Junkerman, Columbus, O.; Dr. J. H. Renner, Palatine, Ill., and Dr. F. B. Grosvenor, of Cuyahoga Falls, O. A comparative exhibition of medicinal agents also is being held.

Eye, ear, nose and throat specialists read papers at their session this morning, with Dr. William H. Phillips, Cleveland, chairman. The speakers were Dr. Elliott Norton, New York; Dr. Leroy Thompson, Chicago; Dr. Charles L. Rumsey, Baltimore; Dr. R. I. Lloyd, Brooklyn, and Dr. S. B. Moon, of Pittsburgh.

Members of the Women's National Homeopathic League were entertained at a bridge-luncheon at the Pittsburgh Country Club during the afternoon, following a meeting in the hotel at noon.

Mayor Charles H. Kline will deliver the formal address of welcome at the opening reception of the institute tonight, and the response will be made by Dr. Joseph R. McCleary, of Cincinnati. Dr. Arthur H. Gordon, of Chicago, president-elect, will read his annual address preceding a reception to the new officers. The sessions of the institute will continue until Thursday night.

Presenting one of the finest assortments of printed organdies with which we have ever greeted a summer season! And presenting them at an unusually favorable price.

Entrancingly prim little flowers sprinkled on white or pastel grounds...these for little girls' daintiest frocks. Dresden bouquets, life-like in clarity of color and design...an excellent choice for a young girl's dance frock. Flowers of every size and kind, in every summer color, on grounds of white, pink, peach, blue, orchid, green, or yellow.

Here's beauty to take your breath away... and to set you planning organdy dresses for yourself and all your daughters and your sisters and your cousins and your aunts!

This is the finest quality of imported, permanent-finish organdy. 44 to 45 inches wide.

Knitted Bouclette Frocks

They Are So Much in Demand Now

These outfits seem to be more popular now than ever, for spectator sports, country club and boat wear, doubtless because the new ones in the Sportswear Shop have so many attractive points.

Some are knitted in skyscraper and other modernistic designs showing startling color combinations, while others are in solid colors or are bordered.

There are youthful two-piece models with slip-on blouses; and surplice styles which are liked by women of fuller figure. $29.50 to $55.00.

Norma Shearer to Be Featured In "The Little Angel;" Producers Give Anita Page Opportunities

By REGINA CREWE

(Copyright, 1928, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, June 18.

IT SURELY sounds as though Irving Thalberg selected the title for the first picture to be made by his bride, Norma Shearer, since their marriage. It is called "The Little Angel," an original story by Leroy Scott, which will be adapted for the screen by Carey Wilson. Norma was first supposed to star in "Ballyhoo," written by Beth Brown, a New York girl. But "Ballyhoo" has been relegated to second position, and will be produced only upon completion of "The Little Angel."

"Beautiful But Dumb" is the title of the Tiffany production which will serve as Patsy Ruth Miller's next vehicle. Charlie Beyer has been engaged for the chief masculine role, and the direction of the yarn has been entrusted to Elmer Clifton.

Note the name of Anita Page for future reference. 'Nita's making good out at the Metro studios, and seems to be in the way of becoming a universal favorite. Everyone likes her. The big bugs plan to see that she has a little the best of it when parts are being handed around. Her first shot was as William Haines' leading lady in "Telling the World." Then she got one of three leads in "Dancing Daughters." This was followed by a role in the Lon Chaney film "While the City Sleeps," and now she has been given the flapper part in the Cody-Pringle vehicle, "A Single Man."

Speaking of Chaney, Lon's film face will be that of a partially paralyzed voodoo doctor in the African wilds. The picture is "West of Zanzibar," and they do say that Lon will spend some time in a local hospital studying the case of a man afflicted in the same manner as is the character he must portray.

They previewed "The Barker" here recently, and you may write it down that George Fitzmaurice, the director, has delivered one of the best pictures First National has had in many a moon. And the best that Milton Sills has made since I don't know when. The original story hasn't been much tampered with. Thus all the punch that made the successful stage play has been retained. The cast includes Betty Compson, Dorothy Mackaill and Doug Fairbanks, Jr., and each does so excellently that an additional 50 feet of film thrown one way or the other would have enabled any of them to steal the picture.

I can't vouch for the truth of this one, but I understand that the development of Movietone film must be handled with the utmost skill and precision in order that the voice may reproduce naturally and evenly. In Movietone, you know, the sound is photographed directly on the strip of film which also contains the picture. And it seems that too long contact with the developing chemicals results in a roaring bass, while under-development causes the voice to literally fade out of the picture.

When Louise Brooks finishes playing Indian with Richard Dix in "Redskin," she will appear in "The Canary Murder Case." James Hall and William Powell are the men. Doubtless, Jimmy will be the "case" and Bill the "Murder." So Louise must be the "Canary."

The title of that college picture in which Buddy Rogers is to star has been again changed. This time to "Sophomore." An interesting item is that Robert Ellis, old screen favorite and one-time husband of May Allison, will be in the picture.

SOME OF THE THINGS -:- PLAYERS DO -:- WHEN NOT ACTING

Josephine Dunn tries to find a duplicate key to her dressing room among the 1,000 keys of the Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer studio (left).

Dorothy Sebastian and Anita Page have found a way to play cards and keep cool. Take the card table down to Atlantic City the next time you want a little social game. It would seem rubber cards would be advisable (center).

Buster Keaton and his leading woman, Marceline Day, go for a dip. Buster's bathing suit was built for a larger boy than he is (right).

STOCK, VARIETY IN BILLS

The George Sharp Players in the Pitt tonight present "White Collars," opening a week's showing.

The attraction offered by the Nixon Players in the Nixon this week is "The Gold Diggers," opening tonight.

The Davis this week presents a bill of Keith-Albee vaudeville and a photoplay comedy feature, "Tillie's Punctured Romance."

The Nixon Players will present "Under Cover," a melodrama in four acts by Roi Cooper Megrue, in the Nixon Theater for one week, beginning Monday night, June 25.

"The Bride," a comedy in which Peggy Wood appeared, will be presented by the George Sharp Players next week. Ray Hurd of Shady Side Academy and the Community Theater of Pittsburgh, will be in the cast of "The Bride."

Fight War Again At Movie Studio

Hundreds of French Blue Devils are swarming over No-Man's land at First National studios these nights. Star rockets light up the countryside, the boom of big guns is heard and the days of the final drive of the World War are being lived over again. It is for Richard Barthelmess' new starring vehicle, "Out of the Ruins," from the Sir Philip Gibbs' story of France in the final days of the great conflict.

Barthelmess appears in the opening scenes as a Blue Devil.

Neilan to Direct MacLean Picture

An arrangement has been made by Marshall Neilan and the Christie-MacLean productions whereby Neilan will direct the first of the Douglas MacLean feature productions to be made at the Christie studios. The picture will be released by Paramount.

Neilan, who recently returned from England, will move over to the Christie studio some time next month to begin work on the first MacLean picture.

The picture, MacLean's first this year, will be of the light comedy type. It will be from a story, "The Carnation Kid," by Alfred A. Cohn.

Cohn, who also wrote the scenarios of "The Jazz Singer," "The Gorilla," "The Cat and the Canary" and "We Americans," in addition to writing the story of "The Carnation Kid," will act as editorial supervisor of the Christie-MacLean productions.

2 GIFTS SWELL MILK-ICE FUND

Another pair of gifts for the Sun-Tele Milk and Ice Fund! And this time the fund is carried over its first hundred dollar mark, in fact, it is given a nice little impetus into its second hundred. Today's donors are the Tuesday Club of Dormont and a group of children living in Edgewood. The latter gave a fete on the lawn of Dr. E. E. Wible's home, Maple avenue, and cleared $40 for the babies, one of the most substantial contributions the fund has had this season. Those actively connected with the enterprise were Betty Wible, Adele Brown, Jane T. Wible, Gene Miller, Marjorie Morris, Josephine Cadman, Jane Smith, Mary Ann McAllister, Barbara Morris, Lois Barnes, Bud Conner, John Cuthbert, Bob Hagy, Teddy Hughes and Russel Sullivan.

INJURIES KILL BALL PLAYER

Baseball has caused two deaths here within a week, the latest fatality occurring yesterday in the St. Joseph's Hospital, where Albert Bachman, 15, of 2022 Arlington avenue, died of septicemia. His death was the result of bruises and lacerations of the leg suffered when he slid to base while playing ball in the Eccles street playground, May 22. A few days ago a lad died from injuries suffered when hit on the neck by a ball. The blow severed an artery.

How To Be Beautiful by Maria Jeritza

"HOW SHALL I GROW THIN."

"HOW shall I grow thin? Can't you give me a quick, sure method?"

These questions are asked nearly as often today as in the past seasons when flatness and angularity were the fashion.

Maria Jeritza.

The "svelte," well-rounded, yet slender figure without a bone showing, is acknowledged today by fashion, as it always has been by classic art, to be the perfect feminine figure. Healthy, well-exercised muscles must underlie this symmetrical figure—muscles padded with firm tissue neither too fat nor too thin, as healthy muscles always are.

For this reason diet alone is not enough to bring about the rounded slenderness that is the mode. Exercise is needed as well.

If you must reduce very quickly, do so, I beg of you, under the personal supervision of your own physician who understands your case, else you may undermine your health, affect your heart injuriously, even endanger your life by enthusiastic but misguided efforts.

When you hear of women who lost seven or eight pounds in one week, resolve that you will not follow their example. It is not healthful to lose more than three pounds weekly. And the sure, safe, method is that which nature dictates—wholesome, plain food and normal exercise, not merely for one week or month, but always.

"What!" I can hear some overplump person exclaim. "Shall I have to exercise and diet always to keep thin?"

"Why not!" is my reply. "Do you not expect to take baths all your life to keep clean?" Normal living is not a hardship.

As a matter of fact, plain food in well balanced meals, together with abundant exercise, make up a pleasant regime and they will keep you feeling and looking delightfully fit and well.

Your three-mile daily walk, your 10 minutes of accurate, energetic exercise, mornings, followed by a bath and rub-down, your swim or tennis or golf or croquet daily or week-ends, your diet of fruit, fresh vegetables, milk, whole-wheat bread and butter with just a little lean meat or fish each day and only one sweet—all this constitutes a far happier manner of living than physical laziness and over-indulgence in rich food. Neither office work nor housework, with its modern labor-saving aids, furnishes a normal amount of physical exercise. You must exercise until you perspire to keep thin.

Here are four typical exercises which limber most of the muscles of the body and will go far toward warding off fat if you practice them persistently, accurately and energetically every morning:

Stand straight, with your weight over the balls of your feet, your back and neck erect. Try to make your elbows meet in the back. Repeat this exercise 10 times the first week, after that 20 times daily. It should banish fat from the back.

With your hands on your hips, fingers toward the back, lean forward and describe a circle with your upper body by rotating your trunk on your waist as axis 10 times to the right, then 10 times to the left.

Stand straight, lift your arms over your head, then touch the floor, without bending your knees, 20 times.

Lie flat on your back and hug your knees to your chest with your arms 10 times. These four exercises, together with a moderately reducing diet, plenty of water taken internally and externally and your daily walk should keep you slim, supple, clear of skin and full of pep.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Brides, Weddings and Rehearsals Overshadow Travel, Benefits and Golf as June Nears End

EVERY once in a while one talks of travelers and benefits and golf, just to change the subject, but one's efforts to be versatile in conversation about society affairs are doomed these days to defeat. For before one realizes it the subject of the conversation has drifted back again to brides and weddings and rehearsal dinners.

Without any further apology for chatting day in and day out all this month about weddings and plans for weddings, I want to tell you about an engagement that has just been made known.

The W. J. Guthries, of Fifth avenue and Beechwood boulevard, have announced the betrothal of their daughter, Jean, to Robert G. Fiscus. The announcement was made at a luncheon Jean gave Thursday in her home.

And at the luncheon three brides-to-be were guests of honor—Lida Repp, Margaret Constans and Eleanor Baton.

Lida, daughter of the Robert M. Repps, will marry, you may recall, Dr. Edward Harper Rynearson, of Rochester, Minn., son of Dr. and Mrs. Edward Rynearson, on June 26. And Margaret Constans has named Saturday as the date for her marriage to John Armstrong Robinson, of Chicago.

Eleanor Baton's engagement to Edwin P. Scheetz, of Germantown, Philadelphia, was announced, you will recall, in May. Eleanor is planning a fall wedding, I hear. Jean Guthrie attended the Thurston School and went later to National Park Seminary at Washington, D. C. Her fiance is a graduate of Washington and Jefferson College and of the University of Pittsburgh School of Law.

With the horse show well in the past, society folks are now turning their attention to the dog show which is scheduled for Saturday, June 30, at the Allegheny Country Club. These dog shows have been held for the past three years, but no formal organization of dog lovers had been formed until recently, when the Sewickley Kennel Club came into existence. The show this year is being sponsored by the women's auxiliary to the Allegheny General Hospital, and is given for the benefit of the social service department.

Mrs. William C. Robinson is chairman for the show and she has announced that the judging will begin at 9:30 o'clock in the morning. Mrs. Robinson is being helped by Mrs. Maitland Alexander, Mrs. Harvey N. Van Voorhis, Mrs. Henry R. Rea, Mrs. Christian L. Shannon, Mrs. F. F. Liggett, Mrs. Charles F. Holdship, Mrs. Carroll P. Davis, Mrs. Henry Chalfant, Mrs. Walter Mitchell, Mrs. W. B. Schiller, Mrs. J. Frederic Byers, Mrs. George Collord, Mrs. Marshall Bell and Mrs. Frank Severance.

Youth may be conventional enough to be married in June, but the younger generation does not always, as we all know, conform entirely to all conventions about weddings. A few years ago to wear anything but a white satin wedding gown was quite unthought of. Today, although most brides still wear the traditional costume, there are a few who dislike white.

Ruth Justice, daughter of the William Martin Justices, of Darlington road, whose marriage to Millard Corey Rowley, of Williamsport, took place Saturday in the Episcopal Church of the Redeemer, has a prejudice against white. So at her marriage the only white in her costume was in her bouquet. Her gown was of chiffon and the color was the blue of delphiniums. She wore a large blue picture hat of the same shade. Majorie Barnhardt, who was maid of honor, wore shell pink chiffon and a pink hat, and Lora and Marian Rowley, of Syracuse, N. Y., sisters of the bridegroom, appeared in peach and pale green chiffon frocks with hats to match their dresses. They carried spring flowers.

John Oerhli, of Williamsport, was best man, and Franklin W. Kaufmann and William Justice, Jr., were ushers. And the Rev. Dr. Robert Nelson Meade was the officiant. The altar of the church was banked with pink gladiolas and peonies, against a background of cibotium ferns.

Following the wedding, which took place at 11:30 o'clock, was a breakfast in the home of the bride's parents. After July 10, the Millard Corey Rowleys will be at home in Williamsport.

The wedding of Miss Jean E. Wiley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Wiley, of Watson boulevard, North Side, and Dr. J. DeWitt Baker, of Woodlawn, took place Saturday night at 8:30 o'clock in the Wiley home with the Rev. Dr. C. O. Daugherty, pastor of Trinity Methodist Protestant Church, officiating. The bride wore white satin and lace, with a tulle veil held with orange blossoms, and she carried a shower of white roses and lilies of the valley. Her sister, Miss Margaret T. Wiley, as maid of honor, appeared in blue taffeta and tulle and carried pink roses. The flower girls were Clara Jean Alston, of Birdboro, Pa., and Jean Esther Door, of Philadelphia, wearing frocks of white georgette and carrying Colonial bouquets. Dr. H. W. Edwards, of this city, was best man. A dinner and reception followed the ceremony, and later Dr. and Mrs. Baker left for a motor trip. They will be at home after August 1 in Broadhead road, Woodlawn.

Miss Mary Gail Barnhart, daughter of Mrs. Pearl S. Barnhart of East End avenue, has named June 30 as the date for her marriage to William R. Beardsley, of Colorado Springs, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Beardsley of Briar Cliff road. The wedding will take place in Colorado Springs.

Miss Dorothy Esther Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Curtin Meade Wilson, of South Atlantic avenue, whose marriage to Frederick William Stahl, of Baltimore, will be solemnized Saturday at 3 o'clock in Christ Methodist Episcopal Church, will have Mrs. John Edward Schutte, formerly Miss Anne Louise Kinzer, for her matron of honor. The flower girl will be Helen Louise Zimmerman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hollar Zimmerman. Gordon O. Dunford will be best man and Mrs. Allison J. Berlin will play the wedding music. The ceremony will be performed by the Rev. Dr. Albert Edward Day.

Mrs. Craig McKee and Miss Margaret McKee, of Kittanning, will give a bridge luncheon Wednesday in honor of Miss Margaret Kennerdell, of Kittanning, whose engagement to Robert Wilson Snodgrass, of Avalon, has been announced. Miss Dorothy Taylor, also of Kittanning, will entertain with a dinner and bridge party Thursday. Last Thursday Miss Martha Mateer, of Freeport, gave a bridge luncheon for Miss Kennerdell.

Mrs. James Henry Canfield, of Beverly place, has announced the marriage of her daughter, Miss Sara Fleming Canfield, and W. Gerald Holmes, of New York, which was solemnized Saturday in the chapel of St. Andrew's Episcopal Church by the Rev. Reginald Moodey. After September 15, Mr. and Mrs. Holmes will be at home in New York. The bride is a National Park Seminary girl and Mr. Holmes is a graduate of Colgate.

The marriage of Miss Anna Gladys Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Taylor, of Spencer street, and Louis Raymond Peterson, of this city, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Peterson, of Warren, Pa., was solemnized Saturday at 6:30 o'clock in the Taylor home by the Rev. Dr. C. Carson Bransby, pastor of the Homewood Presbyterian Church. The bride wore a bouffant frock of white satin and lace and her tulle veil was held with orange blossoms and pearls. She carried white roses showered with lilies of the valley. Mrs. Harry Garber, as her sister's matron of honor, appeared in apple green chiffon and carried pink roses. The bridesmaid was Miss Helen McClees, of West Elizabeth, wearing orchid chiffon and carrying pink roses. Henry K. Troxell was best man and the wedding music was played by Mrs. George Mitchell. Ralph J. Leety, of Philadelphia, sang. After an Eastern trip, Mr. and Mrs. Peterson will be at home in Montview place, Wilkinsburg.

The wedding of Miss Eleanor Dick, daughter of Mrs. Pamela W. Dick, of the Fifth avenue apartments, formerly of Greensburg, and Wayne Wallace Horne, of this city, took place Saturday at 5 o'clock in the Hotel Schenley with Mr. Horne's father, the Rev. Calvin W. Horne, of Cleveland, officiating. The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Dr. R. B. Fisher, wore white chiffon and duchesse lace with a picture hat of white maline and rhinestones. Her only attendant was her niece, Pamela Fisher, as flower girl. After a wedding supper, Mr. and Mrs. Horne left for an extensive motor trip in the East. After July 12, they will be at home in the Fifth avenue apartments.

Mrs. Mary J. Stuart, of East Cherry Hill street, Carrick, announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Edna Viola Stuart, to G. L. Arnold, of Dormont.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Frieda Westphal, of Carrick, to Grayson Stewart Evans, of Aspinwall. A fall wedding is planned.

A card party will be held tomorrow afternoon in Kaufmann's dining room for the benefit of the Rev. J. Emmet Creahan, of Thunderhawk, N. D.

A card party will be held Wednesday night in the auditorium of the Church of the Assumption, Bellevue.

The seniors of the Cathedral High School will be entertained Wednesday morning at a breakfast to be given in the Pittsburgh Athletic Association by the juniors. There will be 45 guests.

ELECTS 1928-29 OFFICERS -:- WOMAN'S CLUBS -:- GIVES FOREIGN PARTY

OFFICERS

FOREIGN PARTY

When the Aspinwall Woman's Club gave its annual Americanization party for the Grant street foreign class of the Pittsburgh public schools, Mrs. W. Duncan Taylor, Mrs. S. F. Herr, chairman, civic department; Mrs. T. J. Ford and Mrs. C. A. Wanamaker, president, were among the most active.

CARRICK MOTHERS' CLUB HAS ANNUAL LUNCHEON

A short but charming program featured the annual luncheon given Saturday at the Morrowfield Hotel by the Carrick Mothers' Club. Mrs. Lucille Miller Werner presented a program of soprano solos, most happily and appropriately chosen and sung with Mrs. Werner's customary artistry. Miss Grace A. Hall was a fine accompanist. Then Miss Margaret McCown, rather new in club work, read Alice Gerstenberg's light little monologue, "The Patroness," but gave the inconsequential playlet with humor and deftness. Mrs. William Rossiter, as toastmistress, presented Mrs. M. A. Keffer, the retiring president; her successor, Mrs. George L. Gearing, and Mrs. O. H. Graf, who is retiring after seven years as treasurer, with corsages of yellow roses. Mrs. Howard H. Parker was the efficient and thoughtful chairman who arranged the luncheon of 87 covers. Mrs. Julius N. Glasser was chairman of music and the invocation was offered by Mrs. J. Walter Watson.

The annual meeting of the Dickens Fellowships of North America opened in Toronto yesterday and will continue until Wednesday. Mrs. Daniel G. Fowler, chairman of the study class of the Pittsburgh group, is attending as Pittsburgh's delegate and also present from this branch are Miss Elizabeth Gelston and Mrs. J. G. Hays. The Toronto branch of the fellowship is the largest in the world, numbering, as it does, 1,100 members. It has established and maintains a summer fresh air camp, a visit to which has been included in convention plans.

"Mussolini, the Imperial Dictator," "The Child in Our Midst," "The Philippines," "Financiers of the New Age," "Our War-Time President," "Our Neighbor Canada," "Heredity and Environment," "Women of the Bible" and "The Wealth of the Sea" are among the topics to be studied by the members of the Prytaneaum Study Club during the first half of next season. The year will be opened on September 25 in the home of Mrs. F. B. Bolton and Mrs. Frank Toy, the new president, is to start the ball rolling with the first paper. Other subjects and personages which the members will discuss before the year closes on May 28 will be America's historic railways, great religious leaders, Joseph Conrad, early religions of this state, mob psychology, national parks, Benjamin Franklin and Pennsylvania's historic highways, while a book review will be the closing program event.

The reception and luncheon to be given Wednesday, June 27, in the William Penn Hotel by Eastern Star chapters of Western Pennsylvania is one of the most important events of the year in O. E. S. circles. The affair is planned to do honor to Mrs. Jane M. Roberts, the new worthy grand matron. Grand officers of the state will be present, and a program of more than ordinary interest is being planned, among its features being Maud Ingersoll's "musical pictures." Mrs. Marcia B. Apel is general chairman for the luncheon and is being assisted by Mrs. Fernada Frazier, Mrs. May Getty Kagarise, Mrs. Grace E. Phillips and Mrs. Margaret J. Davidson.

Mrs. Roberts, who was elected Thursday to head the state's organization of more than 80,000 women, will attend the general grand chapter's convention in Denver next month.

She has been employed in a local store but will soon join her husband in Youngstown, O.

FITE STATION MAN, 75, ENDS LIFE WITH GUN

Believed to have feared removal to a county home, Frank Rudolph, 75, of Fite Station, near McKeesport, committed suicide late yesterday by shooting himself in the head, according to a report to the couunty morgue. His body was found in a field near his home, the report stated.

CITY BOOMED IN AVIATION

Four prominent Pittsburgh men who believe that Pittsburgh has a golden opportunity of becoming the airplane manufacturing center of the country, but that prompt action must be taken before this opportunity is passed by, are sponsoring a sort of educational trip to eastern aviation fields and airplane factories. Approximately 100 Pittsburgh business men have been invited to make the trip from Pittsburgh and to acquaint themselves with aviation and to see for themselves the possibilities for Pittsburgh.

he local party will leave for New York Friday, June 28, returning the following Sunday night. Airplanes will be put at the disposal of the visitors at each of the plants visited so that they may make sight seeing flights. A visit will be made to Montauk Point, Long Island, where seaplanes will be available. Leaders in aviation, among them Commander Richard E. Byrd, Clarence Chamberlain, Dick Depew, Bert Acosta, Bert Balchen and others will be on hand to take the Pittsburghers up.

Sponsoring the trip are W. G. Costin, Taylor Allderdice, Norman Allderdice and George S. Hann. All four men believe the "getting acquainted" trip will help the Pittsburgers realize the possibilities in aviation for this city.

Norman Allderdice said last night: "Pittsburgh missed the greatest chance in history when she failed to realize that automobiles were not toys but would develop into one of the greatest industries in this country. Other cities, just as they did then, are making preparations now to grasp the possibilities of aviation. Not one of these has the advantages that Pittsburgh has for airplane manufacture. We do not believe that Pittsburgh will miss this chance and we hope that this trip will be the starting gun for a movement that will make Pittsburgh the greatest airplane manufacturing city in the world."

Although invitations for the trip were only mailed Saturday a number of men already have signified their intention of going. Among them are County Commissioner E. V. Babcock, A. L. Humphrey, John F. Casey, T. A. Mellon, James Schoonmaker, Charles Ferguson, F. R. Dravo, T. M. Girdler, R. L. McKallip, Col. A. W. Wycoff, J. P. Hoelzel, Thomas M. Jones III, William I. Berryman, C. I. Leiper, N. F. Bown, Col. H. C. Fry and W. L. Monro.

NORTH SIDE MAN BURNED IN BLAST

Believed to have entered a gas-filled room with a lighted match late last night, Clyde Heltman, 38, of 1305 Bidwell street, North Side, was injured seriously in the explosion that followed. He is in the Presbyterian Hospital suffering burns about the body. According to firemen, the bath room which Heltman entered, was filled with gas from a leaking pipe. The damage to the house amounted to about $500.

CHURCH DEDICATES NEW SUNDAY SCHOOL WING

The new $55,000 Sunday school building of the Stewart Avenue Evangelical Lutheran Church, Stewart avenue and Brownsville road, was dedicated yesterday afternoon. OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

MISTAKEN IDENTITY

By L. LAMAR MATTHEWS

JOHN M'DONALD and Jed Burkes dashed into Beadle's country store, as a sudden downpour of rain began.

McDonald was a surveyor, just completing his first job of surveying. Jed Burkes was his lineman.

"How long before train time?" Burkes asked the storekeeper.

"Ten minutes," was the reply.

Burkes started to say something else, but before he could begin two girls leaped through the open doorway—breathless and mirthful over their race with the rain. And Jed stood with his mouth open staring at the larger of the two fair arrivals.

"Go back to the stove, Miss Betty," said kindly Mr. Beadle, "I'll make a little blaze so you can dry out."

Both girls hurried to the rear of the store, and the proprietor followed, gathering up boxes for firewood as he went.

"Who is the tall one?" asked Jed Burkes, when Beadle returned.

"That's Betty Teasley, our school teacher."

The whistle of an approaching train ended their conversation, and the travelers hastened away toward the railroad station.

It was after they had taken up their new work in a distant state that Jed Burkes confided his secret to John McDonald.

"Buddy, you know that girl we saw in the crossroads store?" he began.

"Uh-uh," answered McDonald, glancing up from his newspaper.

"Well, I can't get that girl out of my mind. The minute I set eyes on her, I knew she was the woman I'd been waiting for all these years.

"I've been thinking about writing to her; but I never could write much. Say, Buddy, how would you feel about writing a letter for me?"

"Sure, I'll write your letter for you, Jed. But where'll you send it?"

"Send it to Miss Betty Teasley, Pleasant Ridge, Missouri."

So John wrote the letter—and the girl answered it.

Weeks sped by and the correspondence continued. At first it was all in fun. Then it became more serious. John found himself very much in earnest about those letters. He loved the way Betty expressed her thoughts and he loved the things which she thought.

One day she wrote, asking for a photograph. That worried Jed. He was a big, uncouth fellow and he knew that he was homely. Finally he solved the problem by slipping John McDonald's picture into the letter which John had written for him.

"I don't suppose she'll ever see me," he chuckled, "and I'd like for her to believe I'm handsome."

It was during the spring time that matters became really serious. Jed wanted to marry the girl. He said so.

"Mother Dugan's grandchildren are coming out here for the summer," John said. "She's worried to death about what to do with them. Let's suggest that she needs a governess for them; and recommend your school teacher."

"Betty did say that she hasn't any folks," mused Jed, "and she was dreading the long vacation out there in the hills. Maybe she'd be glad to have a nice place to spend the summer."

Mother Dugan who owned and operated the hotel, near their construction camp, was delighted with the idea. She asked John to write the girl asking if she would be interested in such a proposition.

At last came the long-anticipated day of Betty's arrival. Jed was hilarious until the hour approached. Then he had an attack of stage-fright and begged John to go with him to meet her.

When Betty stepped off the train, both men were standing at the steps. But it was upon John McDonald that Betty Teasley smiled. It was his hand that she grasped.

John devoured her with his eyes for one instant; then he turned to Jed, bowed, and moved back.

"Won't you introduce me?" she said shyly, turnng to John.

"Why that's Jed—Jed Burkes," he gasped.

The three rode in silence to Mother Dugan's and somehow, they got through the evening.

The week following was a painful one indeed.

Jed moped around until John could stand the strain no longer. One night he lost his temper.

"What's the matter with you, fool?" he cried. "You act as if there had been a death in the family."

"Buddy, I've got to tell you something, and you've got to tell me what to do," declared Jed. "This is not the girl that I've been loving all this time.

"She isn't the girl who was in Beadle's store."

"There were two girls in the store that day," declared John. "This is one of them."

"The girl I saw there was a nice, hefty blonde. This is a sweet little thing; but I never favor brunets."

John McDonald gave one loud whoop. And without another word he started toward Mother Dugan's.

"Mother Dugan, please tell Miss Betty Teasley to come out here," he begged.

Betty came in answer to his summons.

"Listen, honey," said John, grasping her arm. "Who was the big blonde girl who came into Beadle's store that day Jed and I were there?"

"That was Kate Smith," Betty answered. "I lived at her home. Why do you call me out in the middle of the night to ask me that?"

"Tell me the truth," commanded John McDonald, ignoring her question. "Are you in love with Jed Burkes."

"No, I hate Jed Burkes and I hate you. Why did you send me your picture and tell me that it was Jed Burkes?"

"My picture? What picture?"

Then Betty darted into the house and came back with a pack of letters and a picture.

"Did you send me these or did Jed Burkes? Answer me that."

"I wrote the letters, honey," admitted John, "but I certainly did not send you that picture."

"I started this idiotic affair because I was so dead lonesome way out there in the country," sobbed the girl. "That's the only reason I answered that first letter. Then after your picture came I— I—"

"Who sent that picture to me, if you didn't?" she demanded.

"I sent the picture," said a voice behind them. It was Jed speaking.

"And I might as well own up to the whole thing. When I sent it I never really hoped to see the girl again. I wanted her to think I was good looking. I was crazy about her." He stopped suddenly, and clutched John's arm.

"Where the devil is that blonde girl that came into Beadle's store the day that we were there?"

"Kate Smith" exclaimed Betty.

"I asked the storekeeper who that girl was and he told me Betty Teasley," Jed muttered.

"He just misunderstood your question," laughed Betty.

"I am going to write Kate that you are crazy about her."

"And tell her, Darling," interrupted John, "that when you and I are married we want her and Jed to stand up with us at the wedding."

Breaks All Coast-to-Coast Round Trip Records by—

10 Hours and 36 Minutes with a

FRANKLIN AIRMAN

Los Angeles to New York to Los Angeles

Total mileage: 6692. Total elapsed time: 157 hrs. 23 min.

(All timing checked by Western Union Officials)

Once again Franklin's advanced construction principles have won a decisive victory!

In sixty-six hundred miles of continuous driving—under all conditions of road and weather—a stock Airman Sedan driven by Cannon Ball Baker, famous road driver, achieved the record which, above all others, carries outstanding prestige and recognized importance.

The Airman's ability to cover the maximum miles per day with the minimum of fatigue to the driver counted heavily for success. Mile after mile, hour after hour, Franklin maintained a higher average rate of speed—registered many extra miles per day—which is the true test of speed. Cannon Ball Baker drove the Airman continuously from Los Angeles to New York and back to Los Angeles with no stop except for fuel. The Airman is the only motor car designed for sustained high speed with comfort.

Scientific light weight provided supreme driving ease. Franklin's ability to hold the road—and the positive action of synchronized 4-wheel hydraulic brakes—established a new conception of high average speed with safety.

Aviation has advanced the air-cooled motor as the standard of engine performance. In all the recent record-breaking flights the air-cooled motor was unanimously chosen for its reliability and powers of endurance.

The Airman's record-breaking, coast-to-coast run makes the air-cooled motor supreme on the highway. Its thorough dependability and efficiency were positive factors for safety—on the stiffest mountain grades the air-cooled motor delivered an abundance of power without a suggestion of overheating.

You are urged to have a demonstration this week—in America's fastest road car.

This remarkable round-trip coast-to-coast record beats the previous record by 10 hrs. and 36 min.

Slain as Car Stops In Traffic

International News Service.

NEW YORK, June 18.—An attractive blonde, driver of an automobile in which Edward Carter, alleged bootlegger, was shot and killed yesterday in crowded Herald Square, was sought by police today. They expressed the belief that she lured Carter to his death.

Carter, wanted by the federal authorities, was killed after the automobile had been halted by the traffic lights.

A sedan, containing four men, crossed Broadway from West to East just after the traffic lights had halted the Broadway traffic. Three of the men got out of this car, and walked back to where the other car was waiting for the traffic lights to change.

One of the men stepped to the coach and fired a shot through the window, which was open, the bullet entering Carter's right side. As Carter slumped over the gunman opened the door of the car and fired five more bullets into his body.

The woman opened the door on the left side of the car and disappeared in the traffic. The three gunmen returned to their automobile and sped away.

The car in which Carter was killed was identified as one registered in the name of Miss Doris Sheerin, chorus girl and night club entertainer. She walked into police headquarters and said she knew Carter as "E. Jack Kayton," having met him in a night club several weeks ago. She said she frequently loaned him her car, but he took it yesterday without her consent. The police did not detain her.

RANKS THIN AFTER DAY AFLOAT

Three local dance marathons today resumed at their old stands, after spending Sunday afloat. Cuts were made in the list of contestants in each derby.

In the Academy Theater, three couples were left to shoot at the local record of 262 hours and 15 minutes. At 2 o'clock they had completed 258 hours and the attendants expressed the belief that each pair would be able to pass the New Kensington record shortly after 6 o'clock tonight. Bill Titus and Mamie Richmond, with 225 hours to their credit, quit yesterday, leaving the field to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Proic, Sonia Lou Slovic and Buck Weaker and Isabela Spade and James Ross. They spent Sunday on the Japanese Garden in the Monongahela River.

Twenty dancers had survived 181 hours in the Negro marathon at 2 o'clock. Leaving their boat Japanese Garden early today, they paraded the hill dancing in busses on their way to Motor Square Garden, where they resumed the long grind.

The Duquesne Garden list was whittled down to 39 couples at 2 o'clock after 111 hours of hoofing. Five dropped out during the Sunday boat ride on the Julia Belle Swain and five succumbed today after being returned to the Garden.

SLAIN FLEEING PATROLMAN

Patrolman James Swide, of the Oakland police station, today will give bond before the coroner pending the inquest into the death of Edward Travis, a Negro of 21 Soho street, who was slain by the officer during a street fight early Sunday. The brawl occurred at Logan and Pasteur streets. The dead man, after attempting to stab the policeman, was shot while running away, police say.

AMERICANS FLEE QUAKES

MEXICO CITY, June 18.—(AP.)—Terror reigned in Central and Southern Mexico today after earthquakes had shaken the region from the Gulf of Mexico to the Gulf of Tehuantepec for two days.

Apparently the only casualties occurred in the state of Oaxaca, dispatches from there stated: "There were casualties and numerous houses collapsed." The number of the victims was not given.

In many places people were camped in the open, refusing to reenter their homes in fear of new tremors.

Fifty distinct shocks were felt there in the first hour of the quake Saturday night and tremors of lesser intensity were felt Sunday. Streets in the city of Oaxaca were cluttered with the debris of fallen walls.

Heavy seas rushed inland at Puerto Angel for a distance of 60 yards. Various warehouses along the waterfront were destroyed.

In Mexico City the earthquakes were felt as late as 5:30 last night and these widened the cracks which had appeared in the streets and pavements. Many plate glass windows were shattered in the business section and a few adobe walls fell.

In the hotels groups of foreign tourists, including many Americans fled into the streets.

The movement in the capital was strong enough to swerve automobiles from their course and throw pedestrians from their feet. One of the hospitals reported a case of hysteria on the part of a taxicab driver. He became delirous with fear when his car skidded erratically. The driver lost control of his automobile and it plunged across the sidewalk at full speed, smashing into a building and cutting two passengers.

In every theater the audiences dashed for the exits. There were jams and crushes at the doors but no serious injuries resulted.

Marilee and Kent Reach The Crux; Shall He Marry Her?

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

Emily Day and Kitten are daughters of a worker in the Rossiter factory. Both are prevented by poverty from mingling with the socially elect of the little town. Emily has made an ideal of Kent Rossiter. Mary Nolan, whose father keeps a "speakeasy," is devoted to her. Mrs. Frances Haiden, a wealthy interior decorator, takes an interest in her and tells her the only aristocracy is that of work. She gets a job with Mrs. Haiden. Her father dies and Rossiter offers help which her mother declines. Avis Rossiter's father threatens to disinherit her unless she changes her ways. Great preperations are being made for Avis Rossiter's marriage.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

ALSO he was sufficiently conventional-minded to wish to do the things expected of him. Many of his sort have found their style cramped by this.

Now he caught the waiting look in her face and leaned forward, elbows on his knees, head down. He knew what it meant; he had seen it there often this past week.

"This as well as any time," his thought ran. "Settle it—have it over. Probably her right to an understanding now that Avis is married—"

Still he said nothing and a stinging restlessness caught him. A thing to be settled—a wife to be acquired cooly, all according to plan, as one acquires a profession and an office in which to practice it afterward.

Had Marilee any feeling for him more than he had for her?

Kent was too sensible not to know he was a good catch. Marilee might wish to marry him for that; she was, Avis often declared, cold-blooded.

Not such a bad arrangement after all, perhaps. What everybody would call a splendid match.

Yet he had a vision of himself spending his life with this girl—standing beside her in a scene like tonight's transferred to the house next door—taking her away for a cut and dried European honeymoon as Van Alstyne had taken Avis—sitting at her dinner parties, trying to keep her to two cocktails instead of six. Marilee affected all the ultra-modern mannerisms.

She moved closer to him and slipped her hand into his. Rather an appealing little gesture coming from her; it beat against question and doubt with a flash of real liking. He leaned back and put his arm around her shoulders.

"Marilee—"

Perhaps she really did love him: perhaps his uncertainty hurt. At any rate she moved nervously and flung at him, "Oh, step on it, Kent! Get the agony over."

The flash of liking sputtered out. And when she twisted her hand in his, winning toward the softness which had moved him before, he felt only a plodding sense of duty.

"Marilee—"

She was quiet now, waiting, pressing her arm against his side. But he hesitated again with his face turned away. No moon tonight and the air had turned murky; even the lights across the river were obscured.

Suddenly in the thick dark beyond the cliff a whistle sounded low and deep; it was answered by another lighter one, a signal that burst out like a shout of laughter.

Something warm and golden went piercing through him not so much a memory, perhaps, as a sensation.

It would not be true to say he had treasured the recollection of the last night he had sat here on this bench with a girl, or even that he held any really vivid memory of Emily.

Much water had flowed under the bridge since then and many had watched it flow. Life had led him into far places and had spread before him a moving panorama of change and event. Besides it is not the way of a man to wrap a thing in rose petals.

This was an impression of something infinitely sweet and tantalizingly elusive. And there was blame with it too, as of a tenderness repudiated. A dim thing, no more to be grasped than the fragrance of the flowers over his head.

Yet it reared itself like a wall between him and what he had been about to do.

All over in an instant; Marilee still waited. Almost, through the darkness, he could see expectancy fading from her eyes. For he knew she felt the wall.

"Want to be moving, Kent? Got another smoke?"

"Right-o. Light it for you? Guess it'll rain in another hour. Careful of those briars."

He left her at her door and knew she was mightily puzzled and disappointed.

CHAPTER XXIV.

ONCE, before he left Lyall, Emily did see Kent.

She left the shop late one afternoon, tired and a little discouraged. Frances Haiden had not been able, as yet, to satisfy herself on the scheme of decoration for the new commission and her young assistant was commencing to suspect that even such fascinating things as colors may be turned into hard work.

She sauntered up the River Road feeling keen delight in the monotony of green on every side. And it was as she waited to cross the street—as she waited, curiously enough, under a spreading elm—that a motor load of gay young folk, hatless and laughing, glided by.

Marilee Grainger and another girl Emily didn't know were in the back seat. He sat between them—the Kent of her recollections, the boy of a thousand and one dreams.

Exactly as she remembered him, he was; eyes so very blue, full-cut, merry lips with lines at the sides, cleft to the center of the proud chin.

Yet thinking it over afterward she decided he seemed not quite so carefree as he had been in the old days. There was about him a hint of sterness; he appeared more than six years older somehow.

It seemed for a second their eyes must meet and she held her breath. Almost she thought him about to speak. But they swept on and he had not seen her.

She stood there rapt with excitement, a furious knocking in her throat. Then the car disappeared down the street and a dreamy sadness possessed her. She went on up the hill feeling that her spirit waited in a great stillness—listened for a strain of half-remembered music.

The next day the society column reported that Kent had gone and a little torment of loneliness gnawed at her heart. Even though she might never see him, to think of Kent down there at Highcliffe, perhaps walking in the garden, under the roses of the pergola was one thing; to vision him faring forth beyond the horizon line, lost in the immensity of an unknown world was quite another and one that shook her.

Life went suddenly stale and colorless; in a driving panic she turned to Kingdon Coles.

He had invited her into the city to dine some evening and attend the theater.

"Not very interesting now," he said. "Shows all closing for the summer. Still the Drama Association is trying out a new piece. You might think it amusing."

"Anything would interest me, King. You wouldn't believe—would you—that I've never been to the theater excepting for a matinee? Living almost in New York, really, and not a glimpse of the Gay White Way when it's gay and white. S'pose you won't believe that."

"Yes," he said. "Why not? Frances told me a little."

That puzzled her, rather. She didn't know, of course, about the tradition of wealth and old-fashioned family now accepted as fact by Coles and the others. Frances never had hinted to Emily that she was sailing under false colors through no fault of her own. And if ever it occurred to Coles to wonder why he failed to be invited to the home of this girl the tradition answered all questions.

He saw her at their friend's house because her family would hold to medieval customs in matters of courtship and marriage. A suitor first would present himself to her parents and after satisfying them would be permitted to call upon her occasionally sedately and, of course, under proper chaperonage.

Time enough for this. No matter how much in love a man might be there was no need of rushing things. He didn't blame her for wanting to get out of such a moyen-age atmosphere.

Once or twice he had seen the gray light and the sweet face flush suddenly; he had felt a lilt—a singing rhythm—about her. And he suspected that he hadn't touched even the surface of her real feeling. Depths there and heights—vital, exultant heights. But that would come.

Kingdon Coles never underestimated himself.

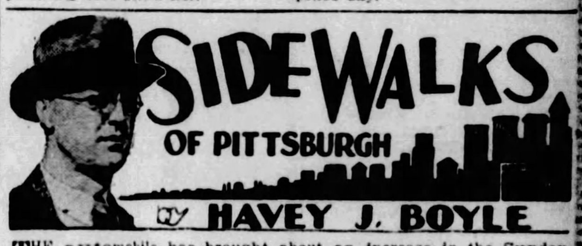
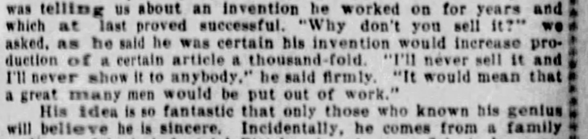
SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH



By HAVEY J. BOYLE

THE automobile has brought about an increase in the Sunday family picnics, allowing city folk to get out into the country to spend a day. Prohibition has eliminated another kind of Sunday picnic which some 20 years ago was a big event in the lives of North Siders, South Siders, and West Enders. The kind that prohibition did away with was the beer picnics. It was the custom of the time for a group of burghers to "pitch in" and order a keg or so of beer. Around the keg, so to speak, were many kinds of games played. There would be a songfest, too, and, as twilight was setting in of a Sunday evening, you could see returning from such affairs a team of horses drawing a large wagon filled with couples young and old, and a crying baby or so. There are still evidences of Sunday picnics to be had with an occasional auto truck carrying through the suburbs a gang of city folk, but the songs seem a little dry, and the old-time zest appears to be lacking.



There were not always merriment and laughter at the picnics. Sometimes there would be violent disagreement between rival gangs assembled and now and then there would be a head cracked. But the next day the hardy sons of toil would be back at their work in the mill, laughing over the excitement of the previous day—and quite often patching up their differences to make ready for another picnic.

THERE was in these affairs a suggestion of old world connections. The Germans seemed to be leaders of these family gatherings. The Irish took up the idea, too, and wrought a change or so. Beside the keg or beer there would be a little hot stuff, as in those days some of the Irish of Pittsburgh thought beer took up entirely too much room when results could be achieved much more quickly with alcohol in more concentrated form.

The boys were sitting around telling of their golf exploits. It brought back the time when Hooks Warner and this writer went out to play. Hooks was a ballplayer and a good golfer. Hooks stood a little off to one side and watched us take a swing. It was a slice and the ball hit Hooks on the cheek. Ball players have a certain pride about their ability to stand punishment. Hooks didn't even rub his injured cheek although quite a lump came up at once. We walked over solicitously and asked: "Hurt very much, Hooks." He had to get rid of his indignation someway so he said: "You couldn't hit one hard enough to hurt me."

Then there was the time that Dazzy Vance was playing with a Pittsburgher. The Pittsburgher took a cut and the ball struck a tree 100 yards away and bounded back into the fairway and rolled onto the green. "Well," said Dazzy, "if you'll pardon the observation I'd say there was something besides science in that shot."

A VERY fine line sometimes separates the mechanical genius, an inventor, say, from the region known as queer. A mechanical genius we know has no formal education, whatsoever. But put a complicated machine in front of him and he'll make a few scientists and philosophers look foolish. He lives in Pittsburgh. He was telling us about an invention he worked on for years and which at last proved successful. "Why don't you sell it?" we asked, as he said he was certain his invention would increase production of a certain article a thousand-fold. "I'll never sell it and I'll never show it to anybody," he said firmly. "It would mean that a great many men would be put out of work."

His idea is so fantastic that only those who known his genius will believe he is sincere. Incidentally, he comes from a family made wealthy in industrial Pittsburgh. A queer fish, to be sure, coming from wealth, owning no schooling, and holding back an idea that instead of putting a lot of men out of work might create work for 10 times the number employed.

BROADWAY STAR RADIO HOUR HOSTESS TONIGHT

FLORENCE MOORE, comedienne, will be the hostess for the O-Cedar hour, which will be heard through WCAE and associated NBC stations tonight at 8 o'clock. Broadway productions in which Miss Moore has been starred include "Parlor, Bedroom and Bath," "Breakfast in Bed," "Greenwich Village Follies" and "She Couldn't Say No." She was also with the Music Box Revue for four seasons. The Keller Sisters and Brother Lynch, harmony singers, will make their second appearance during that hour. They will sing "Together" and "Collegiana." The male quartet will sing "Get Out and Get Under the Moon" and "Just a Night for Meditation," and the Melody Maids will be heard in several orchestra selections.

The Trail Blazers, a band directed by Harold Sanford, will present a program of compositions by John Philip Sousa during the Riverside hour to be broadcast through the NBC system, including Station KDKA, at 9 o'clock. Among the numbers by the band will be "Semper Fidelis March," "United States Field Artillery March," "Colonial Dames' Waltz," "Saber and Spurs" and others. A male quartet will sing "The Bugler," by Pflueger, and Gibson's "The Drum."

Genia Fonarjova, mezzo-soprano; Irving Jackson, baritone, and Arcadie Birkenholz, violinist, will present compositions by Mendelssohn during the "Works of Great Composers" program through the NBC system at 10 o'clock. KDKA will be the hookup. Mme. Fonarjova will sing "The Favorite Spot" (Op. 98, No. 3) and "Venetian Gondola" (Op. 57, No. 5). Mr. Jackson's song group will consist of a selection from "Elijah" and "Auf Flugeln des Gesanges" (On Wings of Song). Two movements from Mendelssohn's "Concerto in E Minor" will be played by Mr. Birkenholz. A concert orchestra directed by Cesare Sodero will play several selections, including the War March of the Priests, from "Athalia" and excerpts from "Midsummer Night's Dream." Jakob Ludwig Felix Mendelssohn was already a composer at the age of 17, at which time he composed the overture to Shakespeare's "Midsummer Night's Dream."

NEWS PICTURE AT EAST END SHOW

Allied with an all-star program, "The Making of a Newspaper," two-reel news film, will appear before East Liberty theater patrons today at the Liberty Theater, and continue there this week.

"The Drag Net," featuring George Bancroft in one of his most dramatic roles, will be the main attraction. Supporting George Bancroft in this thrilling picture are Evelyn Brent and William Powell. In the comedy, "Fiddle Sticks," Harry Langdon moves his provoking way, while an unusual stage show includes Eddie Cook and the Shaw Sisters, formerly of the Zelgfeld Follies. Their's is a singing, dancing and melody act, full of snap and humor.

The news film, made after special study and shooting, is a thrilling exposition of the way newspapers gather and produce their news. It includes special "shots" of many of the leading newspaper celebrities of the United States, and is declared to be one of the most interesting of educational films ever screened. The basis of the film is a big event, easily recognizable by the public as legitimate news.

IMPROVISED BOILER LETS GO; MAKER DEAD

TOWANDA, Pa., June 18.—(AP.)—Lyle Kellogg, 21, of Smithfield, near here, was hurt fatally yesterday when a steam boiler, which he had constructed from an oil drum, exploded. He was cut and bruised by flying fragments of the drum and burned by scalding water and steam.

JULIUS C. PIERCE

Julius C. Pierce, 32, 418 Chestnut street, Carnegie, Austrian aviation ace during the World War, was killed on the Beaver Falls road, near New Brighton, when his automobile overturned and pinned him beneath. The steering knuckle broke and the car swerved over a concrete curbing. His wife and another passenger were unjured.

AUSTRIAN WAR ACE KILLED

Julius C. Pierce, 32, of 418 Chestnue street, Carnegie, an ace in the Austrian flying corps during the World War, was killed yesterday on the Beaver Falls road near New Brighton when his automobile overturned, pinning him beneath the machine. Pierce was driving toward Pittsburgh, and as he was passing the tate Police barracks the steering knuckle broke, it is said, causing the car to veer into a concrete curbing and upset. He was taken to the Rochester Hospital, where he was pronounced dead. His back had been broken.

His wife, Mary, 27, and another passenger, Jenny Kopalis, 25, of 519 Third avenue, Carnegie, were uninjured.

Pierce came to Pittsburgh in 1922 and was naturalized only a year ago. He was among the "enemies of '18" feted at the American Legion banquet given April 19 for former German and Austrian soldiers now resident in Pittsburgh. He was an employe of the Shadyside Electrical Company.

SALEM LIABLE FOR EPIDEMIC

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., June 18.—The City of Salem is liable for the 1920 typhoid fever epidemic, caused by the intentional clogging of a sewer by city officials to compel residents to connect with a new sewer, the Appellate Court of Eastern Ohio ruled in ordering a new trial of F. G. Harding's suit. Harding was non-suited in Columbiana county when the court ruled the city was not liable for a governmental act.

Two of Harding's daughters were among the epidemic victims. He contended that when the city established a new sewer some users of the old sewer failed to make new connections and the old sewer was intentionally clogged to force new connections. Sewage from the clogged sewer seeped into the city water main and caused the epidemic.

SINKS TO DEATH AS BOAT TIPS

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., June 18.—Otto Pontz, 20, was drowned and his brother, Gussie, 12, swam to shore and collapsed when the canoe in which they were riding in the Beaver river capsized yesterday afternoon. Gussie was resuscitated with a pulmotor. The body of the drowned youth was recovered several hours later by College Hill firemen.

3 FINED $200 FOR SETTING DEER TRAPS

SOMERSET, Pa., June 18.—Alleged to have set traps for deer in the mountains of Jenner township, Robert C. Keyser, 22; his father, Noah Keyser, 65, and Jesse Giessner, 67, were each fined $200 and costs by a local justice.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

The body of Tom Kingsley is picked up by Capt. "Scarface" Sweeney and his mate, Marlow, off Singapore. Tom's brother, Robert, also an old "sea dog," is notified of the death and receives articles found on the corpse. Among these are two small but handsomely carved Ivory Idols. Robert Kingsley has good reason to believe that Hsi Yan, an ancient enemy, has returned after 30 years to seek vengeance. The Idols are stolen and Young Bob starts out to recover them. After many adventures Bob and Verna Lyle are both prisoners at Richardson's plantation. The Malay whom Bob had rescued plans Verna's and Bob's escape.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

BOB KINGSLEY drew in his breath sharply. An instant before there had been nothing but trees around him—now he was suddenly in an open space across which, some 10 yards away, great, rugged walls of rock rose high in front of him.

And then his glance fell upon the three remaining members of the Alita's crew who stood close at hand. Two of them slung a hammock from their shoulders. There was a figure in the hammock. The lower part of the face was wrapped about with a cloth—but a pair of eyes met his. A lifetime seemed to pass in a second. Another shot came. A bullet whined. The expression in those eyes! Not fear! They seemed to blaze at him, as though the soul they windowed were aflame with fury.

"Quick, Nanu!" he prompted under his breath.

The hammock, Nanu, and the three men were gone—they seemed to have disappeared as though into the earth itself. Then, in turn, his own hammock was borne quickly forward—but only for a short distance. An instant later, it was set down upon the ground.

Tifu spoke:

"Crawl behind this rock, Tuan, and make all haste!"

It seemed at first like the entrance to some weird cavern, but in a moment, with Tifu and Kafan lying stretched out at full length on each side of him, Bob Kingsley had got his bearings. There was no earth beneath him any more—only rock; and the angle at which he lay, with his feet so much lower than his head, was indicative enough that the downward trend of the ground here was perilously steep. Overhead, as though a roof had been riven apart, there showed a narrow streak of moonlight, and he saw that he lay at the opening of a great fissure in the cliff. In front of him was a rampart of broken and huge rocks—and beyond these, save for the short stretch of open ground that he had just traversed, the trees and woods were thick in all directions.

And now, suddenly, flashes, red-tongued in the darkness, came stabbing out from amongst the trees, and there was the spat of lead as it flattened itself against the rocks that sheltered both himself and the two men beside him; but it took scarcely more than a glance to satisfy Bob Kingsley that his position here in the narrow opening was practically impregnable. The Chinamen could not rush across the clearing without suffering two or three casualties at least—and they were only five all told! They would not attempt it. His jaws snapped together. If they only would!

"Keep your revolver loaded and hand it to me when mine is empty, Tifu," he said. "I think, even with my wrists linked, I am a better shot than you are, and we won't waste any more ammunition than we can help."

He began to fire coolly and methodically at the flashes as they spurted out from the trees. He emptied his revolver, passed it to Tifu, and tok Tifu's in return—but he did not fire any more now. He couldn't hit them there amongst the trees—there wasn't a chance in a thousand. The situation was an impasse. Neither one could attack the other.

And then he smiled suddenly, not pleasantly, to himself. Cagey birds! Perhaps, though, he could match wits with them—and win. A fair shot at any one of them, preferably Chen-shu, would be very much worth while, even if what he proposed to do now resulted in nothing more.

"Tifu," he said in low, quick tones, "we could hold this place forever, but that won't get us aboard the Alita. We've got to work out way down to the beach little by little so that when the boat returns we will not be too far away to make a dash for it. Say this, then, to Kafan, for I do not speak Malay well enough. Tell him to go down until he finds a place where the path twists sharply and where we could again hold it against those above; but let him not go any great distance, for it must be a place to which you and Kafan can carry me quickly. Tell him to go with the utmost silence, but on his way back let him set a stone rolling down amongst the rocks. One stone only. Tifu—as though we were retreating with all caution, but through ill fortune had set the stone in motion to betray us. And so, if nothing more, perhaps we can tempt them out from the trees. You understand?"

"It is well said, O Master!" Tifu answered excitedly—and spoke rapidly in Malay to Kafan.

And then Kafan, without a sound, was gone.

The flashes were still coming from amongst the trees, the bullets were still spattering venomously against the rocks; but it seemed to Bob Kingsley, as he lay there watching grimly, that the flashes were gradually drawing nearer to the outer fringe of the trees, as though Chen-shu and his followers, while still hesitating to show themselves, were encouraged by the absence of any return fire now, and were creeping up closer to the edge of the clearing.

A minute, perhaps two, went by; and then from somewhere behind Bob Kingsley a stone went rattling and rolling down the cleft, and, gaining momentum, finally smashed against something far below with a resonant crash—and echoes caught up the sound, and flung it ringing back and forth from rock wall to rock wall.

"Tuan, see!" Tifu whispered. "They take the bait!"

There was a twisted smile on Bob Kingsley's lips. At the edge of the trees, queer and ghostlike in the moonlight, and each separated from the other by several yards, five white forms had come suddenly into view. If only he could tell which one was Chen-shu! But the figure in the center afforded the surest mark. He fired. A scream answered him. The figure dropped. And then with his elbows acting as a pivot on which his revolver turned, he pumped a bullet as fast as he could pull the trigger in the direction of each of the other four. Cries, more like squeals, squeals of mingled rage and fear, answered him; and, rising above these, the man who had been hit still screamed.

Kafan spoke at his elbow:

"I am here, and I have found a place such as the Tuan ordered."

"Quick, then!" Bob Kingsley ordered. "Carry me there—the two of you! But be careful whatever you do now not to make a sound. I don't think those blighters will show their hides again as long as they believe we are still here, but if they tumble to what we're doing they'll be after us like a pack of wildcats before we can get into position again"

CHAPTER XXXIII.

FOR ten, twenty, fifty yards the two Malays carried Bob Kingsley down the trail—and no stone moved or rattled beneath their feet. And then they set him down where at a sharp turning and behind another rock he could again command the path above him.

"Now, no more stones, Kafan," he directed; "but find another place like this still further down. We'll keep on moving this way as fast as we can."

"Yes, Tuan," Kafan answered.

Bob Kingsley turned abruptly to Tifu.

"Unless I miss my guess," he said bluntly, "they'll try some other tactics. In spite of what Nanu said, the logical thing for them to do is to circle around and get down to the beach from one end or other of the cliff, and so cut us off—or else scale the cliff itself with the idea of firing down on the beach from there."

Tifu shook his head.

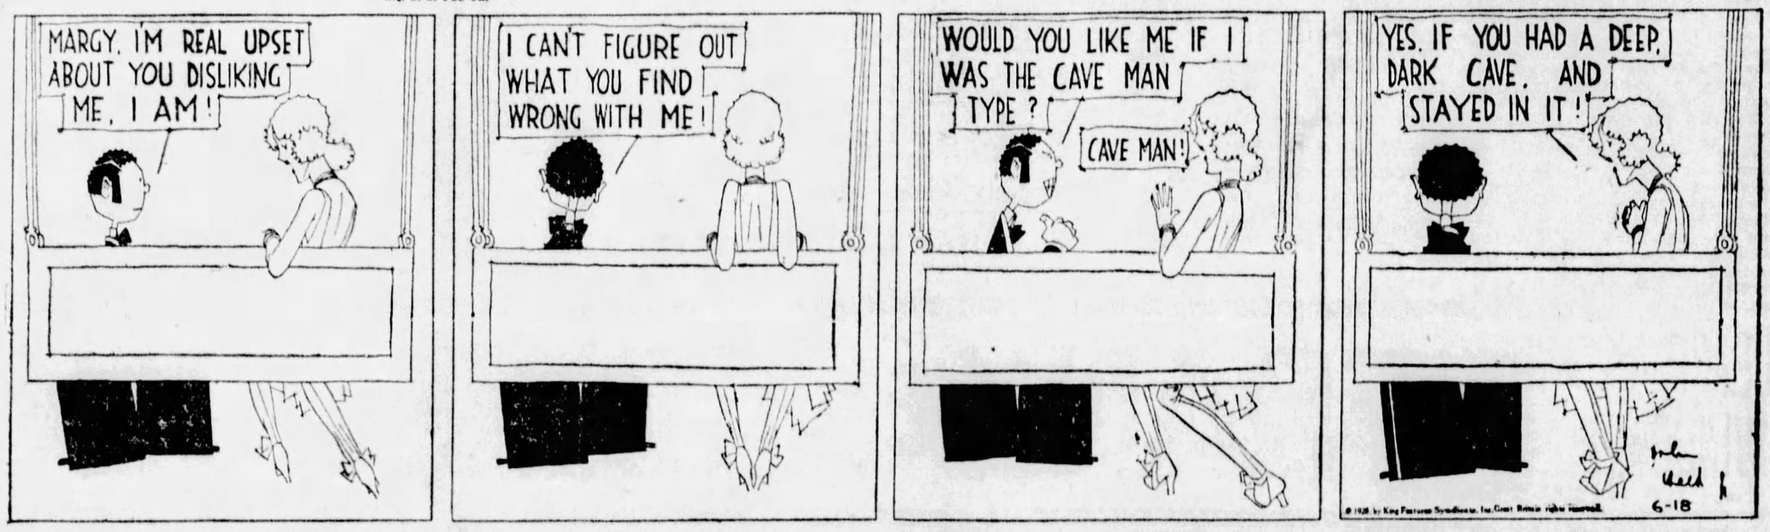
Merely Margy, An Awfully Sweet Girl

Story by Lloyd Mayer

By John Held, Jr.

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.



MARGY, I'M REAL UPSET ABOUT YOU DISLIKING ME, I AM!
I CAN'T FIGURE OUT WHAT YOU FIND WRONG WITH ME!
WOULD YOU LIKE ME IF I WAS THE CAVE MAN TYPE?
CAVE MAN!
YES, IF YOU HAD A DEEP, DARK CAVE, AND STAYED IN IT!
6-18

"My dear, I'm so THRILLED I could GRUNT! I mean I've had more darn FUN with ARab lately because he's comPLETEly BAFfled about the situation because I've conVEYED the iDEA to him that he doesn't RATE with me at this point—can you BEAR it, my dear? GOSH, he's ALL hot and BOTHered in CONsequence, my dear, and keeps VIolently trying to find OUT what's WRONG and all, which SIMply SLAYS me, my dear, because he LOOKS so PERfectly KILLing when he starts WORrying about the popuLARity situation because I mean NOTHing inFURiates him MORE than to have anybody inCINErate he's no GOOSEflesh to them, do you know what I mean? Well, ANYways, my dear, I was HONestly so aMUSED I thought I'd SPLIT an inFINitive because last NIGHT when we were VAGUEly ensconced in the PORCH hammock, my dear, ARab SUDdenly assumed the most feROcious expression you've ever GAZED upon and ASKED me TENSEly whether I'd have the YEN for him if he was the CAVE man type—can you BEAR it, my dear? GOSH, I ACtually thought I'd have hysTERics but I reSTRAINED myself with an EFfort and told him 'YES,' provided he eQUIPPED himself with a treMENdous cave and I could reLY on his STAYING in it? And the FUNniest part of it IS, my dear, that ARab's so awfully LIT-ral-minded, sort of, that when you SAY anything like that to him I HONestly think he believes it imPLICITly or something, my dear—I mean I ACtually DO!"

Noel Is Shocked When Madge Repeats Mary's Refusal to See Him

THE echo of Mary Harrison's mocking voice went with me down the staircase as I carried her inexplicable refusal to see Noel Veritzen back to the anxious young man waiting on the veranda for the girl's answer to his request.

What was the real reason for her action? That was the question which kept repeating itself all the way down the stairway. I took no more stock in her explanation that the young man's persistence upset her so that she could not work than I did in Eleanor Lincoln's assertion that Noel had confided to her Mary's treatment of him. But while the truth or falsity of Miss Lincoln's assertion did not trouble me at all, I was filled with wondering anxiety over Mary's attitude. Neither the coquetry which had led her to accept young Jackson's attentions nor her pique over Noel's continued absence from the farmhouse and his rumored attention to Miss Lincoln was a sufficient reason for the rudeness of her flat refusal to see the young violinist.

I felt as though I had hold of an apparently tangled skein of yarn, in which, if I only could grasp it, there was a loose end which properly pulled would unravel the whole thing. But it eluded me and I was forced to the conclusion that pique at Noel was the mainspring of Mary's action.

Noel sprang to his feet as I came out on the veranda, and Lillian, after a quick, shrewd glance at my face, murmured some perfunctory excuse and disappeared into the house. But I knew that she would stand guard to see that no one interrupted our colloquy.

"I am sorry," I began, "but Mary isn't feeling—"

With his eyes fixed steadily upon me, the boy put up a protesting hand.

"Please!" he said. "It is kind of you to try to soften it, but I'd rather have it straight."

"She refuses to see you, Noel!"

He winced as if I had struck him.

"Did she given any reason?"

"She said," I repeated slowly, "that it would upset her work too much, and then she said over and over again, 'I can't, I can't, I cant.'"

At my repetition of the word, he gave me a quick, surprised start and eyed me queerly.

"I wonder," he said as if to himself. "No, that isn't plausible, yet—"

His voice trailed away and I saw that for the moment he was so deep in some conjecture of his own that he had forgotten I was on earth. In another second, however, I felt his hands grip mine and heard his voice speaking insistently, pleadingly.

"Dear Mrs. Graham, isn't there some way of either changing her mind or fixing up some chance for me to see her when she doesn't know I'm around? I must have a talk with her to get a certain doubt of mine settled and my mind cleared. Then, perhaps, I can go on to other things."

There was something in the excitement which was gripping him that excited my curious interest.

BOY SLAYER JURY STILL LOCKED

No verdict had been presented in Criminal Court at 3 o'clock today in the case of Peter Cirigliano, 16, of Lowrys Run road, Ohio township, charged with the murder of Ross Ficaro, 28, of McKinney avenue, Stowe township. The jury at 3 p. m. today had held the youth's fate in their hands for 72 hours.

Cirigliano admitted killing Ficaro, the alleged betrayer of the defendant's sister, and said that he did so in defense of his mother. It is alleged that Ficaro threatened the entire Cirigliano family when the mother announced her intention of bringing action against him for her daughter.

The case was given to the jury Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Saturday morning the jury informed the court they could not agree on a verdict and asked to be discharged. Judge Richard W. Martin refused to discharge them, and after giving them further instructions directed them to retire again. They had not reached a verdict late yesterday, court attaches said

LEAPS OUT JAIL WINDOW, FLEES

Leaping through a window in the rear of the Homestead police station last night, Dominick Aracco, 35, believed to be a fugitive of justice from Detroit, dropped 20 feet to an alleyway in the rear of the station house and escaped.

Aracco was arrested Saturday night at 510 Fourth avenue, Homestead, on a suspicious person charge. He had a number of women's dresses and could not explain where he got them, police say.

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH DAD?

"FATHER'S DAY" was a grand and glorious opportunity for Father to meet the children socially and get acquainted with 'em.

The only vital difficulty was keeping Father home from the golf links or the baseball game long enough to tie the pretty cravat around his neck and remind him that he WAS a father.

Father has long since forgotten that he was once "the head of the house," feared, respected and consulted in all things. Now he is just "the man who married mother," the family cash register, the "poor worm who supplies the silk stockings."

But don't blame MOTHER! Everybody's blaming Mother, these days, for the sins of the children; and no doubt she deserves a lot of it. Women are the champion man-spoilers and children-spoilers of the world. Between the mothers who run around to beauty parlors and bridge clubs all day and the mothers who stay at home and nag all day, the children have a good alibi.

But what's the matter with DAD? Where does HE get off 't free in this general arraignment? Why isn't HE on the job?

Who holds the purse strings and the balance of power in the ly. Who pays for the snappy roadster that Sonny drives into raph poles and ditches? Who puts up the money for Daughbackless evening gowns and jeweled cigaret holders?

Who pays for the cocktail-shaker and shells out the money for things that go into it? Not Mother. Just dear old easy-mark Dad!

Where is Dad when Daughter comes tripping in at dawn or ay comes warbling in at sunrise? Is he getting his beauty p—or is he still out at a poker game, or playing at a night club somebody else's daughter? "Father, dear Father, come home me now!"

ELINOR GLYN tells the TRUTH about

Justice

IT is JUSTICE? Justice is aking a true decision upfacts of the case, unbiased judice, sentiment, emotion or bribery. That is why the ancient sculptors depicted justice with bandaged eyes—to show that the God was uninfluenced. How comparatively rare it is to meet just persons in this modern world! So many human beings are g and acting as though ould take all material away with them, and g dollars without actual jail were a perfectly re- le procedure!

he thing to din into the of children is the law of merang. What they send rns to them again—and are unjust in their play— over mean tricks upon tle companions, Fate will t to them injustice from later on. The trouble is that it is so difficult to make anyone realize this, since the punishment or result of our actions frequently does not demonstrate quickly enough to make the connection between cause and effect instantly apparent. But in 20 years of anyone's life the law of the boomerang can be plainly seen.

R GLYN

Where were they then? Where are they now? If successful and rich by unjust methods, they may have poor health, or unhappy home lives, or some secret worry, and hanging above them always is the menace of disgrace and calamity which may fall at any moment. Men are often unjust to women—expecting them to remain in love with them when they have ceased to put forth any of the courtesies and charms which made the emotion possible in the beginning. Women are unjust to men, expecting them to stand all sorts of nagging and tiresome ways which they would not have thought of showing when they are sweethearts.

If you want a smooth and happy life, try to take a just view of every situation. Analyze your own reactions to eliminate prejudice, and cultivate will sufficiently strong to force you to act with justice in every decision, for there is not a status in life where the strong, just character does not rise to the top of his ambition.

THE PROFESSOR'S AUDIENCE -:- By Michelson

THE poor young professor! He's thrilled and delighted at the idea that he's attained his life's ambition—that of teaching in a college somewhere, but he had so hoped and dreamed that it would be young men who would be his pupils, for he's studied so hard that he hasn't had time to bother much with the girls.

And now he finds himself before the class of lovely girls, and he's actually scared to death! With all those eyes—blue ones and brown and hazel—fixed so intently on his, he wishes the floor would open and swallow him. He feels as though they are giants and he's a wee bit of an elf. But he'll soon get over that and then what havoc will be wrought. Dan loves just such situations and frankly, I'm sorry for the poor young professor, aren't you?

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

Tuesday, June 19

ALTHOUGH the pleasurable as relates to social, domestic, artistic and affectional activities is uppermost this day, yet there are auguries of new ventures in which these may figure. Business may assume feminine aspects or negotiations may be with women or relate to woman's interests. These may be put in serious jeopardy by lack of self-contention or tempestuous conduct.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year in which the feminine may dominate the affairs, either in a business contact or as relates to social, domestic, artistic or romantic activities. As pertains to new business there hangs a menace from lack of self-control, quarrels of tumultuous actions.

A child born on this day may be talented and accomplished in many of the cultural lines, but may need to have instilled self-restraint in speech and deed.

Life is not jest and amusement; life is not even enjoyment, life is hard labor—TURGENEF.

Counterfeiting confetti seems to be a wide-spread habit with silk designers, as many of the smart sports silks are printed in vari-colored confetti effects. Many of the smartest mufflers and kerchief scarfs have these tiny motifs sprinkled in all-over patterns.

For the Lovelorn -:- By ELEANOR GALE

Just

DEAR MISS GALE:

I am in love with the most wonderful character in all the world, but to my disappointment he seems to have no mutual feeling toward me. I have met him, he regards me with many glances, but avoids speaking when he passes me. He has told a friend that if I speak first he would return the greeting. Don't you think this sounds as though he were affected? He is very popular and has been told by this friend of his and mine that I cared for him. Do you think this should not have been told him? He is very handsome and along with this he is considered very bright. He has everything that a boy could have along with being the only child of a wealthy family. He does not care for the girls, although several times I have been conversing with them. I have decided to have a party and invite him through this friend. Do you think he would come and would this be proper? Please don't tell me to forget him as I have tried this several times but each time I see him I like him more. I have been in love before, but in a short time soon forgot. He is in my mind everywhere I go. When I go out for the evening my thoughts always turn towards him and I find myself wondering what he is doing and where he is. Every girl has her dream of a lover she intends to meet sometime. He is my dream, but there is one thing more I want to ask. He is a brunette and so am I. Do you think if we did go together we could get along? Kindly advise me what to do as your advice will plan my future. I could never find a fellow in this whole world that I could love more than I do him. Please tell me how I could get acquainted with him and make him love me. Hoping to hear from you as soon as possible. I am yours in love. JUST.

It is your place to speak first, of course. He would naturally wait until you recognized him before he spoke to you. It would be all right to invite him to the party. Don't let your friends give him the idea you are so much in love with him. It might turn him against you, even if it flattered him. The color of hair has nothing to do with your getting along together.

An Orphan

DEAR MISS GALE:

I always have read your good advice to everyone. You give good advice to them so I thought I would write to you for some. I am an orphan and I'm 16 years old. I live with an aunt who is too mean to me. One night she let me go to a dance. Well, I went but didn't have a good time. Miss Gale, I don't know how to dance. Some very nice fellows asked me for a dance and I said "no" to them. I always was sitting in a corner. Miss Gale, please tell me what to do for I love dancing. After I came home from the dance I cried like a baby. Miss Gale, you know how the fellows act when you refuse them. I wanted so badly to dance but I can't dance. Dear Miss Gale, please help me. My aunt won't let me work so I can get money and take dance lessons. I don't know what to do. At the dance I went to were young fellows and girls of the age of 16 to 19. I know I am too young to go out with fellows. I don't think it is anything to talk with them, is it Miss Gale? Miss Gale, please give me advice? Excuse long letter. I agree with you on the petting, smoke and drinking questions. I, too, think it is very wrong for the girls to do that. What shall I do? AN ORPHAN.

Surely you have some friends who would teach you to dance. Everyone doesn't have a professional teacher, you know. It is all right to talk to the boys you know, my dear.

Unhappy

DEAR MISS GALE:

I am one of the many girls coming to you for advice. I am sure you can help me as you have help others. Here is my problem. I met a boy a few months ago and he said he loved me and Miss Gale, I love him more than anyother boy I know. I have not been going out with any other boys and he said he didn't have a date since he met me. He said he would tell me if he ever likes any other girl better. I think he and some of his friends have been going to see some girls, several miles away, and, Miss Gale, I don't think he loves me. What should I do to win him back? Thank you for your advice, I am UNHAPPY.

Neither of you should limit your friendships in this way, since you are not engaged. Let him have other friends, my dear, and go out with other boys, yourself.

Lonesome

DEAR MISS GALE:

I am a regular reader of your column. I am sure you will help me solve my problem. I am a girl of 21. I have had four years in high school and two years of college. I am considered goodlooking by most everyone. My problem is a difficult one for me to solve. I can get most any fellow I want, but I can't keep him. The fellow seems to like me at first, then he suddenly breaks away. I do not flirt with any one. I don't believe in petting, smoking or drinking. I have been going with a fellow for two months, and now he is breaking away. He took me to every affair in our town and to shows in Pittsburgh. I am not a bit jealous of anyone. Some say I am too independent. I hope you will help me. I am, LONESOME.

Perhaps you overdo your independent manner, my dear. No one likes to be treated indifferently, and from your letter I imagine that's what you do. Retain your dignity, but be more friendly.

Mothers Must Make Summer Sacrifices

WE are approaching the time of the year when the babies require watchful care. The summer time—from the first warm days till the cool nights of fall appear—is a trying time for Sir Infant. The heat is felt by babies even more than it is by grown-ups.

DR. COPELAND

Did you ever think that a baby is influenced a lot by the temper of his mother? If the mother suffers from the effects of heat, if she is kept awake by the stifling, airless blanket of a blistering summer night, naturally she suffers in temper. Unless it is of the unfailing variety, her good nature cracks under the strain of this trying circumstance.

So you see, the baby must endure his own suffering from the heat and, in addition, must endure the irritation of his mother's fretfulness. Babies are just as sensitive, certainly, as horses. A horse will sense and react to the temper and disposition of the driver.

A great many years ago I was driving a spirited young horse. In an hour's time, in spite of the fact that we were not making any remarkable speed, my horse was in a lather of foam. My calm and self-controlled father was with me. He said quietly: "You are tired, let me take the reins." Within a half hour my horse was dry, the lather had disappeared, and we were just jogging along at a better pace than when I held the reins.

The horse knew instinctively there had been a change of leadership and he conformed to the spirit of the new management. Certainly babies know as much as horses. If the mother is tired and irritable, she passes on to the child the same spirit.

We need not stop with the relationship between the mother and infant. An irritable father will upset the whole household. A fretful young woman brings home from her work an atmosphere of irritation and discontent. A cross boy will upset a whole household.

Thus you see the heat of summer is exasperating and trying to all the members of the family. But, with the exception of the baby, it won't cause any lasting harm. The baby must be watched and protected. His health must be guarded with more than ordinary care during the hot days and nights. The first summer is the most trying season of the entire lifetime of this individual.

Dear mother, you are the one always called upon to make sacrifices, but the sacrifices of this summer will mean everything to the young life given to you to guard. What happens to your child this summer is the foundation upon which his future will be built. If he has the right start, he will grow into youth and maturity, strong and vigorous, ready for the battle of life. Your sacrifices are well worth while.

Answers to Health Queries

S. M. B. Q.—I am 47 years of age and suffering from mucus colitis ever since I can remember. Gasas on stomach when the latter is empty, bad taste, poor elimination, gurgling sounds in the bowels but never throw up food, cracked and raw tongue and at times coated. What would you advise? My doctor says nothing about dieting?

A.—Your diet should be of first consideration. All coarse foods should be eliminated, you should drink water between meals and be sure to keep the intestinal tract clear. Acidity would cause most of the symptoms you describe.

R. H. C. Q.—How can I increase the growth of my eyelashes?

2.—What do you advise for chapped lips?

A.—Apply 1 per cent yellow oxide of mercury ointment to the lashes at night.

2.—Apply lanoline frequently.

J. C. Q.—I am a man of 67 and have had trouble with my arteries for some time. Cannot eat salt, have no desire to drink water and very little appetite, also have had rheumatism. What would you advise? Am under the care of my doctor.

A.—Hardening of the arteries always requires specific attention. Follow your doctor's advice. Keep the blood pressure down by proper diet and regular elimination.

BEST IN PITTSBURGH — MO... JUNE 18, 192... — TWENTY-ONE

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

Boost for Pittsburgh Contained in Hartford's Thanks for Fine Exhibition Game—Only One Club in National Makes Better Record Than Bucs in Intersectional Series. Cardinals Lead.

EVEN when it is playing only an exhibition game in a minor league town, and getting licked at that, the Pittsburgh baseball club sticks closely to a policy that is a splendid advertisement for the team and a means of "Boosting Pittsburgh" by creating a most favorable impression and leaving a good taste in other parts of the country.

Barney Dreyfuss

As is well known, some of the major league clubs practically swindle the small-town fans when they play exhibition games. They not only put on the field a line-up of subs, but the latter proceed to burlesque the game by farcical deportment on the field.

THE result is that the baseball patrons of the town, who had awaited the game with more than real interest as an opportunity of seeing famous stars of whom they had often heard but had never seen, are bitterly disappointed, and resent being played for saps.

Such conditions hurt the big leagues, hurt baseball in general, and it is not hard to see how such an occurrence might also hurt the city represented by the club that made a joke out of a game that the minor league town was taking in all seriousness.

That's one of the ways in which Barney Dreyfuss' policy has always been a boost for Pittsburgh. In Pirate exhibition games he gives the small towns a chance to see every regular in action, provided none is injured, and those sent on the field are given to understand that they are expected to play real baseball and give the spectators a genuine big league exhibition.

That's why the Pirates are always in great demand for exhibition games, which are, in a sense, opportunities to do something that will reflect credit upon Pittsburgh.

THE good impression of Pittsburgh that this system spreads throughout the country may be judged from a letter received from the latest minor league town in which the Pirates played. They visited Hartford, Conn., in the Eastern league one week ago yesterday.

Jimmy Wilson

J. W. Pyne, business manager of the Hartford club, wrote the following letter to President Dreyfuss:

"Dear Mr. Dreyfuss:

"I am sending my sincere thanks, as well as those of the directors of the Hartford Baseball Club, Inc., for the splendid game of ball played by the Pittsburgh club on Sunday, June 10, in an exhibition contest with Hartford at Bulkeley Stadium. Hartford fans have usually fought shy of exhibition games with major league clubs due to the fact that such contests have been burlesqued and played in a most perfunctory manner. For that reason it has been our policy to book very few of these games. On June 10, however, the genuine sportsmanship of the Pittsburgh club made the contest one of the finest games of baseball ever seen in this city, and I believe it will have much to do toward restoring the confidence of local patrons in future games of this character."

THE HARTFORD magnate also sent clippings of the Hartford newspapers, which praised the Pirates for their hard and earnest work.

One of them printed the following in a two-column box:

"There was a taxi, with its motor running, outside the Hartford baseball park at 3:50 on June 10, waiting for a passenger who never came. Manager Bush of the Pirates had intended to use Paul Waner only four innings, fearful of injury, since both of the club's first basemen, Grantham and Scott are on the hospital list, and the loss of Waner would be fatal, so he had ordered the cab for 3:50 to take Paul back to The Bond Hotel.

"At that time Hartford was leading, 1-0, so Bush decided to keep his lineup intact.. Waner, too, wanted to stay in the ball game.. Bush did not make a change in his lineup except in the box, and as a manifest of the way the Pirates were hustling, there was the way in which Wright dashed to first for the final out in the ninth inning.. It was the best big league exhibition ever played here."

Gene's Foe at Work

CHALLENGER AT WORK

Tom Heeney has dug into intensive training for his bout with Gene Tunney for the heavyweight championship at the Yankee Stadium, New York, July 26. Here he is seen going through some of his stunts.

PHOTOS BY I... TIONAL NEWSREEL.

RUGGED

Heeney is a husky challenger, as may be seen from his development in the pictures above.

TEX FACES QUITE A PROBLEM

How to get the public excited about his Tunney-Heeney fight is a big worry that is agitating Promoter Tex Rickard these days as the fans remain unresponsive to all his wiles. Tex has a lot of money at stake in this venture and will have to do some tall hustling to make it pay. The interest evinced in Jack Dempsey's matches in recent years is markedly lacking in the forthcoming titular battle.

W. PA. JUNIOR EVENT ENTRY LIST GROWS

By VERNON A. SWARTSFAGER.

WINNING a junior open amateur tournament should be honor and glory sufficient in itself for the boys who will win in the two classes of the first annual Sun-Telegraph West Penn event next month, yet in addition to the honor and glory will be prizes that would tempt many star senior players in a major event. Just how many prizes there will be for the two classes depends on the number of entrants, and that will have to be decided a little later—but there will be a half dozen awards at least besides the William Randolph Hearst Trophy that will go to the winner of the major division, the Junior Class.

This morning found the Golf Tournament Editor's desk just clustered with entries, and if the entries keep coming in at the present pace the Sun-Tele may have to take two days to run off the tournament.

TWO DIVISIONS

Play will be in the Junior Class, for boys 15 years of age to 18, and in the Sub-Junior Class, 14 years of age and under, and will consist of 18-holes medal without handicap of any sort. The competitors, regardless of class must be strictly amateur, however. No boy 18 or under who is attending a school of education above high school will be permitted to play. Caddies who have not reached their sixteenth birthday and who are still caddying may enter, but caddies 16 or more who have received money for caddying after that age, are out.

When you fill in your entry blank, don't forget to send a picture of yourself along, too. Every boy who plays in the Sun-Tele tournament will have his picture published. If you have already sent in your entry blank, and not the picture, send it along with the next mail. In the event you don't have a picture, call the Golf Tournament Editor at Grant 6500—or better yet, come and see him—and he will see what can be done about having one taken.

NO ENTRY FEE

Don't keep it a secret, boys, you know a lot of fellows who think they know how to hit a ball who are eligible. Get them in it, also, for it costs nothing—there is no entry fee.

There is an entry blank on this page. The sooner you fill it in and send it to the Sun-Tele the better it ill be for all of us. And don't forget to get those golf clubs polished up!

SPEAKING OF SPORTS

By HARRY KECK
SPORTS EDITOR

WHILE the boxing world scoffs at the chances of Tom Heeney, the honest blacksmith of New Zealand, against Gene Tunney in the heavyweight championship match of the year at the Yankee Stadium, July 26, there is one man who honestly believes Tom will come through on top. That man is Charley Harvey, Tom's American representative, who piloted Heeney through his series of build-up bouts and then "sold" him to Tex Rickard, the promoter, as the "logical contender." John Mortimer, of London, is Heeney's manager.

Harvey is a veteran in the sport and should know his cauliflowers. He has specialized for years in the handling of English boxers, and has had the best of John Bull's kingdom under his wing.

IN discussing Heeney's chances, the other day, Harvey told an Eastern scribe that his confidence in Heeney had been built up by degrees as, during the past year, he had boxed Paulino, Risko, Delaney and Sharkey, all tough fights that went the distance, and outfisted the crew to win the title chance. Meanwhile Tunney has been idling and has accumulated ring rust as compared with Heeney's fighting edge.

"I believe Tunney reached his peak in his Philadelphia fight with Dempsey," Harvey said. "He wasn't up to his form of that night when he boxed

Heydler Cuts Short Ban On Hornsby

BOSTON, June 19. — (AP.) — A five-day suspension given Rogers Hornsby, manager of the Boston Braves, has been lifted and he may play today. Hornsby received a telegram from John Heydler, president of the National League, informing him that the suspension had been cut short.

Hornsby was suspended on Thursday after he had protested to Umpire Pfirman when the latter called him out on strikes. The incident caused a number of fans to throw pop bottles at the umpire, although none struck him.

MONTE MUNN BEATEN

BUENOS AIRES, June 17. — Clemente Sanchez, of Cuba, upset the dope by outpointing Monte Munn, giant American heavyweight, in a slow 10-round bout here Saturday night. Munn was a heavy favorite to win by a knockout.

BUCKY O'NEIL SIGNED BY MONTREAL

NEW YORK, June 18.—Valen P. (Bucky) O'Neil, Pittsburgh boy who learned his baseball on the Steel City's sandlots and who now is a law student at Georgetown, has been signed by the Montreal club of the International League.

Bucky reported to Manager John McGraw of the Giants Saturday for a tryout, and at the same time the manager of the Montreal club appeared here in search of a shortstop. Although O'Neil never had played shortstop regularly, he said that he thought he could fill the bill, and he more than made good in the tryout which Montreal gave him in a doubleheader at Newark, driving in the winning run in the second game, and fielding faultlessly.

SKIBOS RETAIN JOHN IRWIN

Despite the fact that the Carnegie Tech varsity basketball team failed to win a single game last season, the Skibo athletic council apparently is well satisfied with the work of Head Coach John H. Irwin, who has been signed to another one-year contract.

The Carnegie authorities realized that Irwin did not have the best of material at his disposal last season and are confident he will make a better showing next year.

BUCS START TWO-DAY EXHIBITION TOUR

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Sun-Telegraph Staff Correspondent.

OLEAN, N. Y., June 18.—Donie Bush led his Pirates into the New York State town today for one exhibition game with the Boston Americans, to be played this afternoon at the city stadium. The Red Sox are swinging back home after their Western trip and, like the Pirates, will depart tonight.

The Bushwhackers had a right good time on their way over from the Metropolis, where yesterday afternoon they achieved a 6-0 shutout success over the Giants before 35,000 fans who spent a beautiful afternoon in the vale of Coogan's Bluff.

Burleigh Grimes showed his former mates that the "horse collar" stuff was not the exclusive heritage of any certain pitcher as he blanked the Polo Grounders on five scattered hits. Burleigh was going along like the strong man he is when Sparky Adams tossed out Frank O'Doul to bring down the curtain.

Sharing the honors of the afternoon with Minerva Burleigh was his erstwhile Brooklyn bunkman and catcher, Charley Hargreaves, who seems to have the important task of handling the Grimes spitball, now that Johnny Gooch has departed for Flatbush.

HARGREAVES HERO

Hargreaves came through with that heroic homer that is in the fond fancy of every baseball player who ever stepped to the plate—a four-sacker with three on base. Truth to tell, Charley's round-tripper that unloaded the sacks to make the victory comparatively certain was an ordinary fly ball, but these unearned homers are much the fashion in baseball, and his clout surely was welcomed by the Buccos and Grimes, inasmuch as a fluke double against the close wall of the Baker Bowl took a victory right out of the Pirates' grasp a few

SANDLOT BASEBALL by TOM BIRKS

WITH the J. L. Thomas nine defeating St. John's by a 9-to-7 score, the W. O. W. of McKees Rocks stopping Jack Friel's Tarentum nine by a 4-to-2 count, and the nosing out of the Jimmy Smith Club by Otto Jordans with the score showing 4 to 3, local sandlotters had some real baseball served up for their enjoyment yesterday afternoon.

All the games were real battles and closely contested. Nothing one-sided was flashed in any of the sessions.

Pickles Fredericks and Gus Otey staged a pitchers' duel at Harlan field. Pickles, however, is showing signs of overwork. He pitched on Saturday against the Cuban Giants. But both had good control and nary a base on balls was issued. This is the third straight game that Otey has worked for the W. O. W. without giving a free pass.

Bill McGrady's St. John's staged a rally in the final inning and had the tieing run on the bases in the Sullivan field battle. The largest crowd of the season was on hand to watch these rivals tangle. Turek started for the Saints, but had a bad inning.

In the Jordan game, Callahan pitched the game for the Jimmy Smiths when Leheny reported a little late. Opposed to Callahan was Creedy, and he managed to keep his hits scattered enough to stop Smiths' knotting the score. One of the best crowds of the season lined the Stewart Avenue grounds for the game.

The Homestead Grays are going on an extended tour again this week today they play at Zanesville, Tuesday at East Vandergrift, Wednesday at New Castle, Thursday as Canonsburg, Friday at Bellevue and a double bill is sceduled for Saturday. The Studebaker club will be met at Cycler park in the afternoon, and the evening will find the Posey machine stacking up with Homewood County Leaguers at the playgrounds.

The W. L. Reineckers are looking for a couple of games away from home on Independence Day with one of the fast clubs in the tri-state district. Manager Jock Collette is keeping the boys busy and expects to have a good season. Teams wishing games with the Reineckers should write Jock Collette, 636 Herron Avenue or call Linden 1638-R.

F. J. Broad is making a big effort to popularize baseball in a big way again up the Allegheny Valley. New Kensington battled Blairsville on Sunday and the Kinlock ball field is sporting a new grandstand. This field is going to be the mecca of baseball in a big way. West Newton will be the attraction tomorrow evening, on Saturday the House of David nine will be met at Parnassus High School Stadium.

Hughy Turner of the Canonsburg Gunners is looking for a couple of games away from home on July 4. The Gunners will meet Homewood this evening and the Homestead Grays on Thursday. Teams desiring games should write Hugh Turner, Canonsburg, or call Canonsburg 867-J.

90 SEEK DISTRICT COURT CROWN

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN.

WITH 90 net stars of the Pittsburgh district set for active competition, the fortieth annual Western Pennsylvania tennis championship will get under way on the courts of the Pittsburgh Golf Club, Schenley Park, at 1 o'clock this afternoon. First and second-round men's singles combats are on today's card, with men's doubles slated to begin tomorrow and women's singles to open on Wednesday.

Though favorites have been seeded through the draw so that they will not come together in the early brackets, a host of warm battles are assured from the very start, as club, college and prep school aces are so liberally sprinkled over the list that early contests of herculean proportions are virtually inevitable. Among the early tussles that promise much are the Dr. McElroy-Dick Clemson, Chuck Cochran-Jules Labarthe, Austin Famariss-Paul Barber and Frank Broida-Joe Thompson encounters. Another affair of more than ordinary interest involves Harris Haviland, Shady Side Academy coach, with B. P. Hoover, Carnegie Tech racquet instructor. These skilled and experienced net mentors should put on an exhibition well worth watching.

BAUR DEFENDS TITLE

Byron Baur, 1927 West Penn titleholder, is billed to take on Edwin Clark, promising local performer. Dave O'Loughlin, foremost challenger of Baur, will carry P. A. A. colors into action against William Costin. Dr. O'Loughlin, retiring captain of the Panther court squad, is paired with George Murphy, while Marion Rinehart, crack Stanton Heights driver, will tangle with Earl Carlson and Leonard Reed, 1927 runner-up, attempts conclusions with Edmund Nickeson, of Bridgeville.

A feature of the tourney entry list is the almost unanimous presence of the Duke varsity and prep net aggregations. From Coach Grant Siverd down, the Bluffites will appear for the skirmishes, the Red and Blue array including Capt. Jimmy Creighton, Jake Olko, Sam Keller, Andy Smeaton, Joe Thompson, Dick Creighton, Paul Wilhelm, Vincent Kreuer and Bob Hartman. Shady Side Academy will likewise be well represented, with Billy O'Loughlin, Wally Arensberg, Chuck Arensberg, Jimmy Miller and Bob Crutchfield set to scrimmage. Bob Lampus, Harvard Cup champion, will bear the Bellevue standard along with John Morrow and Gil Morcroft and Frank Casey, junior luminary, is primed to seek honors for Homestead High School.

3 TOURNEYS IN PROGRESS

By VERNON A. SWARTSFAGER.

Three golf tournaments were being played on local links today, despite inclement weather this morning.

The Caddie-Masters' Association of Western Pennsylvania is holding its monthly event under the auspices of the Caddie Welfare Committee of the Western Pennsylvania Golf Association at the Longue Vue Club. Following the tourney the association will hold a meeting and conference with the committee tonight.

The Bond Club of Pittsburgh, with Cleveland Bond Club golfers as its guests, is staging an early-season event at the Pittsburgh Field Club. Ten events are on the program.

The Hotel, Club and Restaurant Golf Association is competing over the beautiful Chartiers Heights Country Club links in another of its bi-monthly events.

STANTON HEIGHTS TENNIS TEAM TRIUMPHS, 6-0

The Stanton Heights tennis team defeated College avenue in a first division Pittsburgh Tennis Association inter-club match at Stanton Heights yesterday, 6 to 0. The summary:

Singles—Reinhart, Stanton Heights, defeated Weis, College Avenue, 6-1, 6-4; Glieden, Stanton Heights, defeated Kaufman, College Avenue, 8-6, 6-0; Ritterbush, Stanton Heights, defeated Sanariss, College Avenue, 8-6, 6-2; Bovard, Stanton Heights, defeated Patterson, College Avenue, 2-6, 6-1, 6-3.

that Jahn plastered for a two-bagger, driving in two runs and turning a promised Pirate victory into a defeat, kept the Bucs from being able to come home from their first Eastern trip of the year Wednesday with a record of not having lost a series.

Burleigh made up for it by shutting out the Giants yesterday. He won three games out of four pitched on the trip.

Bush's performers won the one game played in Brooklyn, took three out of four in Boston, dropped two out of three in Philadelphia and split even in four bouts at New York. That means seven won and five lost.

ONLY one club, St. Louis, made a better record than Pittsburgh during the intersectional series. Just one other club, the Phillies, equaled it, with seven wins and five defeats, and all of the Quakers' seven victories were scored in their last nine games—two out of three from Chicago, two out of three from Pittsburgh and three straight from Cincinnati. It will tax the memory of the oldest fan to recall a previous East-West series in which the Phillies won more games than they lost.

WHETHER it was the addition of Jimmy Wilson, the rejuvenation of Rabbit Maranville, the generalship of Bill McKechnie, or some other factor that caused it, the fact remains that the Cardinals made a better record than any other club in either league during the intersectional strife. They won 11 games and lost two in the East, and when they returned to the West yesterday they made their record 12 victories in the last 14 games by winning an abbreviated game over Cincinanti.

The Reds, by the way, have lost eight of their last 12 games.

Pittsburgh ranked next to St. Louis on the Eastern trip, winning seven and losing five; Chicago won six and lost six, and Cincinnati won six and lost eight.

Of the Eastern clubs, the Phillies were the leaders (another indication that wonders will never cease) with seven victories and five defeats. New York and Brooklyn were tied, each winning six and losing seven, and Boston won only two games against 11 lost.

The West won the series, with 30 games won against only 21 won by the East.

SPORT fans who have been complaining of too little action will not likely make much of a kick this week. Here's the feast that will be spread before them:

This afternoon—Western Pennsylvania lawn tennis championships opening at Pittsburgh Club.

Tonight—Benny Bass vs. Pete Nebo and Lew Tendler's farewell bout against Nate Goldman in first show of Philadelphia's outdoor boxing season.

Tomorrow—Annual Harvard-Yale boat rates at New Haven.

Tomorrow—Jack Sharkey meets Leo Gates, heavyweight boxing, St. Louis.

Wednesday—Home-coming of Pirates for series with Reds.

Wednesday—George Godfrey meets Johnny Risko, heavyweight boxing, Brooklyn.

Thursday—Mickey Walker meets Ace Hudkins in Chicago for world's middleweight fistic championship.

THURSDAY—Opening of the annual three-day tournament for the open golf championship of the United States at Olympia Fields, Chicago.

Thursday—Jimmy McLarnin meets Phil McGraw in light heavyweight boxing bout, New York.

Tuesday—Annual intercollegiate regatta at Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

Saturday — Presentation of certificate and $1,000 as valuable prize for 1927 to Paul Waner of Pirates by League President John A. Heydler before Pirate-Red game at Forbes Field.

Saturday — Forty-sixth running of Latonia Derby for 3-year-olds at mile and a half, Latonia race track.

Ruth Is Now 12 Days Ahead of Schedule

ST. LOUIS, June 18.—Babe Ruth today is far ahead of his 1927 home run schedule as a result of his twenty-fifth home run of the season yesterday off Ogden of the St. Louis Browns.

Ruth did not hit No. 25 last year until June 30. Consequently he is now 15 games and 12 days ahead of his record-breaking schedule.

HUNTER BEATS BOROTRA

SCHEVENINGEN, Holland, June 18.—(AP.)—Francis T. Hunter, second ranking American tennis player, scored a smashing three-set victory over Jean Borotra, French Davis Cup star, in the final of the international tennis tournament yesterday. The scores were 6-0, 6-3, 7-5.

WHEELING CARDS THREE MAJOR LEAGUE TEAMS

WHEELING, W. Va., June 18.—(AP.)—The Wheeling baseball club of the Middle Atlantic League has arranged exhibition games with three major league teams. The New York Giants will play here July 8; the Pittsburgh Pirates on July 15, and the Detroit Tigers on July 23, officers of the club announced.

CHISOX BUY PITCHER

MOLINE, Ill., June 18.—(AP.)—Bob Weiland, southpaw strikeout king of the Mississippi Valley League, has been sold by the Moline Club to the Chicago White Sox for for $5,000. He will report at the close of the Valley season. Weiland, who is 22 years old, first attracted White Sox scouts when he struck out 39 batters in three games, one of which was a one-hit performance.

LOCAL GOLFERS LEAVE FOR OPEN

Charley Rowe and Emil Loeffler of Oakmont and Fred Brand of Allegheny left last night for Chicago, the advance guard of a large number of local linksmen who will invade the Windy City for the national open golf tournament which opens at Olympic Fields Thursday.

Accompanied by many link fans, other district standard bearers were to leave today. The second squad of contestants was to be made up of Perry Delvecchio of Greensburg, Pete O'Hara of Westmoreland, Horace Brand of Uniontown, George Underwood of Alcoma, Pete Walsh of Greenville, and Wright McClure of Chartiers Valley.

BOBBY JONES SCORES 76

CHICAGO, June 18.—(AP.)—Rain dampened the turf at Olympia fields yesterday but not the expectations of the aspirants to the national open golf championship who were on the ground to acclimate themselves for the opening round next Thursday.

Some of the contestants ventured out between showers and after trying the slowed fairways and greens revised their opinion as to what score would win the title.

It was rather common judgment that the winning tally would more likely be above 290 than below. Bobby Jones being among those who predicted that 290 would not be broken.

Jones, playing with Melvin A. Traylor, president of the United States Golf Association, scored 38-38-76 yesterday as compared to 77 the first time he tried it.

The veteran British players, Harry Vardon and Ted Ray, have sent word that they cannot play, although they have been paired for the first round.

NEW OPEN TOURNEY

KANSAS CITY, June 18.—(AP.)—National golfing interest will center in Kansas City for three days beginning next Sunday, June 24. The first annual $6,500 mid-America open will be played on the Lakewood Country Club course with leading golfing stars of the United States and Europe entered.

SPEAKING of SPORTS by HARRY KECK SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS EDITOR

Dempsey in Chicago last year. He missed many punches and was off in other ways. He has had only these two 10-round bouts in two years, and Heeney has boxed nine times since Gene last entered the ring for a real bout.

"THE Tunney-Heeney bout will be a 15-round affair. That is important to Heeney, who, although a plodder, as he has been called, gets better as the fight goes on. It takes him four or five rounds to get warmed up and then he begins to fight at his best. Tunney, on the other hand, is not a slow starter, and, as he has been out of the ring so long, figures to tire badly after 10 rounds.

"Take a tip from me and watch Heeney from the tenth round to the fifteenth. He will beat Tunney during that period. He is the most dangerous heavyweight in the world after the tenth round."

Harvey may be right—but if he is, the remainder of the world is all wrong in its doping of the forthcoming battle.

I UNDERSTAND that Tunney, who never has seen Heeney box, is studying moving pictures of the latter's bouts against Jack Delaney and Jack Sharkey to get a line on him.

Gene may be able to learn much that way, but I doubt it. Moving pictures of any given fight seldom give a true line on the work of the men. They either are cut or aborted in some other way, with the result that the loser often appears to be winning and vice versa. Many fans who saw the pictures of the two Tunney-Dempsey fights and did not see the bouts themselves came away with the impression that Dempsey, always walking in and doing the forcing, had been the real winner. Yet he did not win more than two of three rounds in the two bouts combined.

SPEAKING of the heavyweight situation, a Boston admirer of Jack Sharkey insists that the former sailor yet will come through and win the title. Citing his return to form in scoring his one-round knockout triumph over Jack Delaney recently, this admirer avers that, fighting in the same manner, Sharkey could knock out Johnny Risko in two rounds, Tunney in three and Dempsey in one.

That's going a bit strong, but there is no denying that Sharkey is a great looking prospect when he is sufficiently stirred and in the killing mood, as he was against Jim Maloney and Delaney.

days ago. Grimes was the victim of that incident.

The new catcher found the range on the right field stands in the fourth inning. The Pirates had a two-run advantage which they gained in the first round as the result of the effective batting of the Waner boys and Sparky Adams. Two were out in the fourth and runners were on third and second when Pete Scott came up. Pete waited for four bad pitches and the bases were loaded for Hargreaves.

Dutch Henry, clever left-hander, was giving Grimes a real tussle up to the induction of Hargreaves in the clinch. Charles walked up, measured the first pitch carefully, then propelled the ball into the short stands and the parade was on. The drive was four by less than five feet as it went by the foul line and might have curved foul on a larger field.

Sprout Waner opened the holiday affair with a liner that toppled Andy Cohen when the Jewish star tried for a circus catch. Adams singled into left and Doyle fumbled. Sprout, the younger, sprinted to third and Adams pulled up at second on the play at third. Up came Brother Paul and the Waner act was on in full swing. Paul singled to left to drive in Lloyd and little Sparky.

The Pirates will leave for Harrisburg tonight, where they will play another exhibition game tomorrow. After completing this contest they will hurry back to Pittsburgh to be ready to open the series with the Reds, which begins Wednesday.

The big opportunity of the season to trade in your old or new equipment tires at full value and get top quality DUAL TREAD, PROPER SIZE Generals.

Why Pay Extra for First Year Insurance on Tires that Need It

It's the SECOND Year that Makes the Big Hit

Not only the second 10,000 miles, but the uninterrupted service that carries through to the last mile.

The kind of protection you get only when it is built into the tire—protection that cannot be duplicated by any other line.

Not the protection that dodges the question of natural wear and insures against accidents by promising free repairs.

Not the sort of protection that you collect on only by having trouble—But the "top quality" protection that means avoidance of delay, of dirt, of soiled and sometimes spoiled clothing, of ruined tubes through going flat. These are the real protections that car owners want today.

Freedom from trouble and longest uninterrupted tire wear — two to one.

With the present low rubber prices, what's the use of worrying along with the ordinary tire? Take advantage of this Trade-in Sale to still further reduce the first cost. Run this year and next year on Generals for less than you formerly paid for tires of half the mileage.

Further Stock Weakness Foreshadowed, Says Forbes

By B. C. Forbes

ON THE New York Stock Exchange average quotations fell seven points on Monday and Tuesday.

That represented a substantial relapse, but in my opinion quotations will sink to still lower levels before summer is over.

THUS far the market has run true to form, true to precedent. The very drastic losses in the first two days of the week brought very extensive selling, Tuesday's transactions exceeding five million shares for the first time in the history of the exchange. Banking support was rushed in and this, along with purchases by shorts, brought about the rally which traditionally follows a violent collapse.

Before the week ended liquidation was again under way and prices exhibited indifferent resistance. Such a development also is strictly in line with past experiences.

WHAT should happen next? If events follow their customary course, the market will undergo a series of ups and downs, with the downs, however, predominating. Because of the extraordinary resources of some of the bull operators now most prominent in the market, rallies sharper than ordinary may be engineered. And, of course, it may be that it will be found possible to stem the whole downward movement and force it into an upward direction.

That, however, is not the logical thing to expect. Rather, as already said, past history suggests that lower levels will be reached by irregular stages.

POWERFUL outside factors are calculated to bring about such a movement. The stock market rarely enjoys an enthusiastic boom during the hot summer months; too many speculators and investors turn their attention elsewhere during the vacation season. Then it is doubtful whether the whole country will oblige the Wall street pools by forgetting that a presidential campaign is under way. That politics will inject some measure of uncertainty into the stock market can be accepted as certain. Abnormally heavy gold exports cannot be ignored. The loss since January 1 has reached $300,000,000, and the outpouring shows no signs of abating. Every $100,000,000 in gold shipped out of the country means a theoretical contraction of $1,000,000,000 in available credits. While really dear money is not looked for, it is most improbable that rates will return anywhere near the low figures which ruled when the speculative orgy was rampant.

WHAT of industry and trade? The outlook is reasonably encouraging. The building industry reports rather astonishingly record-breaking activity. The steel industry is finishing a half year of practically record-breaking operations, but net profits are far from correspondingly large. Most motor manufacturers have enjoyed excellent demand, but it may be that the bursting of the stock market boom may have some effect on sales during the second half of the year—Ford cars excepted.

Railway traffic is beginning to show an increase, a gratifying sign. Bank clearings reveal further marked expansion, but this means little in view of the abnormal volume of stock speculation. Employment reports are more favorable. The commodity price trend during the last two or three months have been slightly upwards.

On the other hand, retail trade continues quite spotty. Cotton consumption is again shrinking, and in not a few lines merchants are unable to report gains over a year ago. Commercial failures are very numerous, but the amounts involved are not equally heavy, suggesting that it is the smaller concerns that are feeling the competitive pinch most.

IF Wall Street will only return by orderly steps to a sane level, it will be possible to view the general business outlook with more confidence.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, June 18.—The raw sugar market was quiet early today and in absence of business prices were unchanged at 4.21c for Cuban.

Raw sugar futures were not very active and it appeared as if the trade were inclined to limit fresh commitments and await developments in the spot market. Price movements were exceptionally narrow and showed little variation from the close of last week, the list at midday being unchanged to 1 point lower. The later positions seemed to be meeting increased hedge selling from European interests, but covering and commission house buying absorbed offerings on only slight setbacks.

Withdrawals of refined sugar were a little more liberal, but there was no improvement in new buying. Prices were unchanged at 6.05c to 6.10c for fine granulated.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, June 18.—Owing largely to Liverpool quotations lower than looked for and to favorable weather Northwest, wheat prices here averaged lower today in the early dealings. Heavy rains over domestic winter wheat sections Southwest, however, led to rallies. Opening ⅝c to 1⅝c down, Chicago wheat continued most of the time to fluctuate below Saturday's finish. Corn and oats were also easy, with corn ⅝c to 1⅜c off, and subsequently holding near to the initial range. Provisions tended upgrade.

Increasing stocks at Liverpool and lack of demand there were reasons given today for unexpected price declines which were reflected here. Besides, world shipments for the week were much larger than either last week or a year ago. Meanwhile, further welcome moisture was reported in spring wheat territory each side of the Canadian line.

On the other hand, too much rain was in evidence throughout winter wheat regions where harvesting is near or in progress. Torrential downpours were reported over much of the Central and Eastern part of Kansas. One dispatch received from Hutchinson, Kan., said there had been a loss of 5,000,000 bushels from rain and hail within the last few days.

The following quotations on the Chicago Board of Trade are reported by A. E. Master & Co.:

ROUND TABLE of BUSINESS

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

THE earnings of the Pittsburgh Steel Company during the last year have been adversely affected by the depressed condition of the oil industry. The overproduction of crude oil made it necessary to curtail drilling operations in practically all of the important fields and this reduced the demand for pipe and casing, which constitute an important part of the company's business. Other pipe companies as well as the organizations supplying drilling equipment have suffered from this same condition.

THE low rate of drilling activity at present and the success in reducing production in several fields is tending to improve conditions in the oil industry. From a statistical standpoint, however, the oil business is in much the same condition as in March, 1927, when drastic reductions in prices were made. At the end of April stocks of crude oil totaled 612,674,000 barrels, which was 100,000,000 barrels more than in November, 1926, when the surplus production started. A general drilling campaign is not expected until after crude oil prices have been advanced. The increase of 25 cents a barrel in Pennsylvania crude last week reflected a seasonal demand for this particular type of oil and did not represent a general improvement.

PITTSBURGH STEEL, in addition to pipe, makes wire, nails, fencing and allied products. Demand for these is fairly good. Net income in the present fiscal year, which will end on June 30, is expected to be less than in the previous fiscal year, when $1,951,957 was reported. This was equivalent to $4.80 a share on the 253,500 shares of common stock after deducting dividends on the $10,475,000 of 7 per cent cumulative preferred stock.

DURING recent years the company has been faced with the necessity for greatly increasing its finishing mill capacity in order to keep its ingot producing equipment and mining facilities busy. To do this the Pittsburgh Steel Products Company was purchased on September 1, 1925. Two new seamless tube mills were built and other improvements were made. Early this year $2,000,000 was set aside for further additions to finishing mills. These acquisitions have given the company enough pipe and wire mill capacity to consume the entire output of the open hearth steel producing department under normal conditions.

THE company is a completely integrated steel making organization. That is, it has its own ore and coal mines, its own blast furnaces for making pig iron and its own open hearths. Plans have been made for the building of a large by-product coke plant to cost about $5,000,000, so that the savings from the most modern method of coke and by-product manufacture can be secured.

IN TAKING over the Pittsburgh Steel Products Company funded debt was increased by the payment of $2,500,000 in 6 per cent notes maturing $500,000 annually and by the assumption of the bonds of the subsidiary. The maturity and sinking fund requirements on these amounted to $800,000 annually, so that the directors found it advisable to pass the quarterly dividend of $1 a share on the common stock on March 28, 1927, in order to conserve the working capital. This action was taken in spite of the fact that the common dividends were earned in that year.

LAST February the company sold $11,000,000 of 20-year 6 per cent debentures through the Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh in order to retire the old funded debt of $4,546,000, to pay off bank loans and to provide for further expansion. This reduced the burden of sinking fund charges to $500,000 annually, beginning June 1, 1929.

IT is understood that better earnings results have been shown in the last six months than in six months ended December 31, 1927. In that period net income available for interest charges and taxes was $476,831, which was equivalent to 1.4 times the interest charges for six months on the present funded debt. After deducting the estimated interest actually paid on the old funded debt during this period, however, net income available for dividends and taxes amounted to about $240,000, which was not sufficient to cover preferred dividend requirements for the six months.

PETTING PATTY — Ready for the Party

HOW 'BOUT A REFRESHING BIT OF TEA AT THE CLUB-HOUSE, MISS PATTY?
WHY-YES MR TOOTLE, - I AM VERY FOND OF TEA PARTICULARLY IF IT'S REFRESHING!
IF YOU CARE FOR DANCING PATTY THERE'S A SMALL PARTY HERE AT THE CLUB THIS EVENING AND I'D LOVE TO HAVE YOU STAY.
I'D JOLLY LOVE TO STAY - IF YOU'LL SEND YOUR CAR TO MY FLAT FOR CLOTHES!
TWO HOURS LATER
YOU LOOK STUNNING, PATTY! I'LL INTRODUCE YOU TO SOME OF THE GIRLS AND MEN. YOU ARE A VERY BEAUTIFUL LITTLE LADY!
I'M SURE THE MEN WILL ADORE YOU DO YOU REA-EE EE-LY THINK SO, TEDDY?
THIS TOOTLE FELLA IS GETTING ON OUR NERVES! PATTY'S JUST ABOUT THE GRANDEST GIRL WE KNOW AND SHE'S CRAZY AS EVERYTHING OVER THIS TOOTLE PERSON. IF HE WOULD ONLY THAW A BIT AND LET UP ON THE "MAN'S MAN" STUFF, HE'D GET A NICE SUNNY VIEW OF HAPPINESS.
PATTY AS YOU MAY HAVE GUESSED — UNLESS YOU ARE AS DUMB AS MR. TEDDY TOOTLE — HAS AT LAST FOUND A MAN SHE'D LIKE TO PET.
EVERYTHING IS SO SILLY!

PERMIT ME TO SAY, GENTLEMEN OF THE PRESS, THAT IN DISCUSSING MY INHERITANCE OF THE BROWN MILLIONS I WOULD LIKE TO SAY THAT I APPRECIATE THE RESPONSIBILITIES OF WEALTH. AND INTEND TO DEVOTE THIS MONEY TO SUCH GOOD CAUSES AS APPEAR TO ME TO BE—
WHERE IS YOUR BIRTHPLACE, MR. BROWN?
AH.....WELL, BOYS THAT'S A MERE DETAIL. WHAT I'M INTERESTED IN RIGHT NOW IS TO CONTINUE MAJOR BROWN'S WORK IN MAKING NEW BABYLON A BETTER PLACE IN WHICH TO LIVE. AND—
HOW LONG HAVE YOU BEEN IN TOWN, MR. BROWN, AND WHERE WERE YOU BEFORE YOU CAME HERE?
WELL, GENTLEMEN, I DON'T MIND SAYING OFFHAND THAT ALL THOSE QUESTIONS WILL BE ANSWERED AT THE PROPER MOMENT. IN THE MEANWHILE LET ME SAY—
HOW WERE YOU RELATED TO THE MAJOR?
WHY DO YOU OBJECT TO TELLING US WHERE YOU CAME FROM, MR. BROWN?

REAL CONFESSIONS

The author as she appeared on the Gobi Desert, where she was trapped by a man who professed to be her true friend.

Editor's Note—Miss Abercrombie, who is writing her confessions as a warning to innocent girls, is prominently known in Youngstown, Ohio. You can rely on every word she says, as Miss Abercrombie is accustomed to mingling only in the best society.

By Miss Abercrombie.

I HAVE told how the stranger —a man of apparent refinement—had tickled me with the small feather duster, in carnival spirit.

I was what the world calls a "Society Girl." That is, I enjoyed the society of men.

My mother, being a bridge player, had never warned me, so when the stranger asked for my address and telephone number I thoughtlessly gave it to him.

Of course, I never suspected he was a married man, as he merely explained that he was a traveling salesman who happened to be passing through our little town.

Nor did I dream that he was at that very moment planning to take me to a picture show and then—

This daye, by stealth, did corner an greate rat in the garage, so that he can run neither to right nor left nor thither nor yon, up nor down, out or in. And with the rat thus at my mercie did cry for my zaney to fetch my brave new shotgun. But, Lord! the poor wretch whimper and tremble and saye she is afeard to touch the fowling piece. And when I did run for it, and return, the cowardly rat hath gone, I know not where.

More Loan Indorsements As Time for Vote Nears

But a week remains before the date of the special election on the proposed people's bond issue of $43,680,000, which will be decided at the polls one week from tomorrow, Tuesday, June 26. It will be a week of continued activity on the part of the public-spirited citizens who have been addressing numerous meetings in behalf of the loan in all parts of the county. Upwards of 50 are to be held this week. Many boards of trade, commercial and civic organizations already have recorded themselves in favor of all of the seven questions to be voted on.

While the speakers of the People's Bond Issue Association have been urging the adoption of the loan throughout the county, The Sun-Telegraph has been publishing editorial articles, from time to time, explaining the various items. It has thus reviewed five of the seven, all except Nos. 3 and 5. No. 3 asks whether county indebtedness shall be increased by the sum of $1,500,000 for the purpose of "establishing, making, enlarging and extending" the county parks, by acquiring additional property by purchase or otherwise.

We have just begun our county parks. If we wish to see them become the magnificent public playgrounds that we have admired as we traveled in other regions we must not stop just as we have begun. A good way to post yourself on the county parks is to visit them.

Question No. 5 requests permission to expend an additional $2,500,000 for a county office building, for which the voters authorized $1,100,000 April 22, 1924. The site is at Ross and Diamond streets, Fourth avenue and Pennsylvania Railroad right of way, including the site of the Ross school building and the morgue. The original sum was voted for a building on the site of the Ross school. The new proposal involves the acquisition of additional property. It is stated the county is looking at the future as well as the present in this proposal.

Citizens have just one more week to reflect upon the biggest thing in county improvement that has ever come before them. Their voice will decide whether we stand still or go forward. Big business men who do not hesitate to expend huge sums in their own enterprises not only indorse all of the questions but are giving their valuable time to urge upon the people as a whole the absolute necessity of the improvements contemplated.

Want Your Little Boy Rich?

Get Him a Prohibition Job.

Mrs. Willebrandt confirms the impression that your little boy will grow rich if you can get him a job "in the department of prohibition enforcement." Only, he must not ENFORCE.

She says that one gentleman, supposed to "enforce," reported an income of $2,500, but lived in an apartment costing $400 a month.

Friends of this enforcement officer, according to Mrs. Willebrandt, deposited in their bank accounts $205,000 while the enforcer was at work, although they had never deposited much before. Perhaps they helped him.

The country has many classes of millionaires—pork packers, steel men, merchants, war patriots, movie men.

The latest is a prohibition agent, who goes "from rags to riches" in a very short time.

The average job of prohibition enforcement, according to insiders that know, is "worth" $100,000 a year.

Great energy and all possible influence are shown in the effort to get those humble Federal "enforcement" jobs. There ARE, of course, perfectly honest enforcement agents, estimated by bootleggers who don't like them to number about ten in one thousand. Not a high average.

Earth's Longest Reptile

A Hideously Powerful Monster

LONGEST SNAKE IN THE WORLD

This "reticulated python," captured in the Philippines, would have interested Mother Eve, whose snake probably was smaller. It will answer your small boy's question: "How big is the biggest snake?"

Like all other snakes since the Garden of Eden, this one obeys the law that compels it to crawl in the dust, and the remarkable thing is that, going without food for months, it can develop such prodigious strength.

It took 12 husky men to hold the big python, 22 feet long, 14 inches thick, and force it into its cage.

The python is not poisonous, but its powerful coils would soon squeeze the life out of any man, and the employes of the Philadelphia Zoo handle it respectfully.

Flying lizards once lived on the earth, so big that they could eat this python as a robin would eat worms. Snakes 50 times bigger, some of them probably living in the sea, have also lived on earth, without doubt.

But the four-footed monsters and the creeping monsters are gradually being killed off, leaving the earth to man. He is occasionally a monster also—cruel in war—but he is improving.

SOME PEOPLE CALL IT NOISE, BUT—

New York Day by Day

NEW YORK, June 18.—Diary of a modern Pepys: To breakfast and the wickedest-looking lady I ever saw at a nearby table drinking a pony of brandy and smoking a cigaret at that hour. And Fred C. Kelly came along and we began to speculate how we could look wicked, but being rare purists could reach no decision.

Then to see a cinema executive who sent for me to inquire of my ideas about writing film titles, and I told him honestly I had none and he prophesied it would soon become the goal of every writer. Over this we had words, but parted on fair terms.

In the evening with my wife to a cafe on Forty-ninth street, and the serving girl was of striking beauty and wore a flaming red sash around the waist of her frock. So to see a rowdy play of the old Bowery days with a lady named Diamond Lil whooping things up and I chewed gum and enjoyed it to the fullest. Home to bed.

Probably the floweriest name of any New York newspaperman is that of Frederick Wentworth Mordaunt Hall. It sounds like some one falling downstairs. But to his intimates he is Freddie Hall. New York also has a reporter with a title, but he gave it the bum's rush and is Jeffrey Holmsdale. There was a reporter with a name parted in the middle and a hyphenated manner that went with it. In two weeks the copy desk was calling him "Butch," and he went back to wherever he came from.

An elegant reason for not living in New York was given by a reporter who came here from a middle west city, made good but in a month resigned, and announced his intention of returning to his home town. The city editor inquired why. "When you live in New York," he sighed, "you haven't New York to come to." Many of us from back in the hedges often feel that way.

However, few reporters who sail the New York journalistic seas ever return to more placid backwaters. Some do, of course, but they are a slight minority. Not all remain newspapermen, but they stick to the metropolis. The most surprising thing to the journalistic newcomers is that the game is not nearly so hot as they imagined. The New York reporter will have two assignments to the smaller city's 10. It is not true either that all big newspaper jobs here are held by out-of-towners. A census would likely reveal that more than half the executive and special writing posts are held by born New Yorkers.

Indiana is said to have furnished New York with more crack newspaper and magazine writers and executives than any other state. California is a close second.

Reporters often imagine they have a better chance to become known these days. When they do a striking bit of writing they achieve a "by line"—that is, their article is signed. Yet the best known reporter of the past decade is Frank Ward O'Malley, who never signed a newspaper story.

The good reporter often leaves his hard-working, happy-go-lucky world for more lucrative jobs, but his heart is rarely in his new tasks. "The smell of printer's ink" is a frazzled phrase, but holds a whopping truth. Few get away from its effluvia. It has an intangibble something that compensates for the grind and incessant disappointments. Recently an excellent reporter who had gone to the movies and was successful, came back to his Park Row boss for a job.

"But we can't pay you what you have been making," he was told.

"Whatever you pay me will be dandy," was the reply. "No salary pays for homesickness."

The effort of bench-legged country boys to appear New Yorkish is usually a wash-out. Only this noon a gentleman hailed me with a drawling: "Just a minute, Bub!" I tried to give the butterfly impression of never having much time—just a moment here and there for a fox trot or a cup of tea. But it made no impression. No one would think of stopping a real New Yorker, or of calling him "Bub."

Garrett P. Serviss Says:

Good Speech

AS THE new "super-sonic" waves, vibrating at the rate of more than 400,000 to the second, have a "tearing and killing" effect on living substance, so the increased rapidity of mental action characteristic of the present time, seems to disintegrate human speech. The effect is seen both in the obscuring of syllabic sounds by hasty and inefficient enunciation, and in the cutting short (and sometimes cutting out entirely) of terminations of words, which thoroughly "bobs" the language.

The result is obscurity of meaning on the one hand and ugliness of vocal sounds on the other. When combined with a plentiful use of the most recent slang, this careless, slouching, impertinent manner of speaking turns English, which is one of the most beautiful languages when well spoken, into a linguistic jazz, as shocking as anything that comes over the radio.

Language was made not only to express thought but to afford pleasure, and to endear human beings to one another. Good speaking, whether in conversation, or from the pulpit, the platform, or the stage, or from the lips of a radio announcer, is an artistic product of human effort, involving intellectuality, and a sure sense of rhythm, melody and meter. Nature has given us two supreme means of connection with and knowledge of the world outside ourselves—our eyes and our ears. Both are equally worthy of careful cultivation, and both unite to afford us the highest enjoyments of social life. Neither is a mere device to enable us to see or to hear, but both are excellent in themselves. It is a mistake to suppose that music alone furnishes an esthetic use of sound. Oratory as a developed art is older than music, and in the sum, it has doubtless afforded more pleasure, intellectual and artistic, to mankind than music has done. Language, as employed in simple intercourse, is, of course, the earliest distinctively human characteristic. The development of language has made man the earth's master by developing in him the power of thought. It should not be necessary to urge any person to cherish this great gift of nature, the utilization and improvement of which has carried our race so infinitely far above its origin. Any language which has become the instrument of a national literature is entitled to the highest respect, and those who show contempt for it by abasing its ideals and by violating its canons of taste and usage, are unworthy of the heritage that they have received and failed to appreciate.

It is no excuse for lowering the tone of a language by excessive adoption of slang expressions and the use of the slangy pronunciation and enunciation, to assert, as is so often done, that language is a living thing and must grow and change like other living things. When living things of any kind begin to deteriorate, they are on their way to extinction, or submergency. The question what is deterioration can always be answered by the rule that a tree is known by its fruits. The fruit of the tree of language as it is cut and grafted today in popular usage is a deteriorated fruit. The words that are heard in common conversation become for the majority like the pebbly bed of a brook forming the easiest way of flow for the uninspired spring of ordinary conversation. If they are clipped words, carelessly and imperfectly enunciated words, and slang words, they become by constant repetition almost the entire vocabulary of even "educated" persons who are careless and uncritically imitative in their use of language. The radio announcer has of late been elevated to the dignity of a model of English pronunciation, enunciation, and choice of words. I hope that he appreciates the honor and the responsibility, and that he will always be worthy of the trust. May heaven keep him from slang, and self-respect from clipped and violated words.

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY

Don't Fuss About a Button?

SOMEONE has said that the husband who makes a fuss because he finds a button off a shirt, has met and conquered few great obstacles.

Certainly he has not encountered enough big things to gain control in little things.

The bigger the man, the less he is roused by unimportant, though perhaps displeasing, conditions.

When a man has had to overcome far more emotion-stirring misfortunes than that missing shirt button, he can brush small matters aside.

It is the man who has had his own way too much who lets trifles fluster and unfit him for companionship.

The man of large affairs must have control of his temper.

Otherwise he could not handle big situations successfully.

Life is full of vexations—little things that would sour and spoil much that could be enjoyable, if one were in the habit of giving way to temper.

There is enough demand on the nervous system already. Don't throw a fit over trivial things.

And what does a button off a shirt amount to?

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELS

An Old Song

THE lark these days
Thrills sweeter lays,
And when the linnet sings
A fresher tune,
A gayer rune
Across the meadows rings.

The sunbeams hold
More shining gold,
The sky more tender blue;
Most strange, I know,
That this is so,
But it's because of you!

As old as time,
This sort of rhyme,
For love is nothing new,
And in love's ways
Alone these days,
I think, because of you!"

Detective School

AMONG other graduates of the current season are the "dry" agents, who are going to school to learn how to be liquor detectives. What degree they will get on completion of the course hasn't been announced. Maybe M. S.—Master of Snooping. Or maybe D. V.—Doctor of Volsteadism. To enforce the eighteenth amendment without violating the fourth or fifth takes training. We hope the agents prove apt scholars. At present the law of the land and the principles of individual right are too hopelessly at variance to be brought into harmony by anybody who does not know, big Sherlock Holmes, ...

Tales that are Told

Tamed the Tamer

"WHAT I want to know is," said the landlord of the Village Arms to the lion tamer, "how you have the nerve to face the animals in the cage."

"Oh, that's easy. I just show 'em I'm not afraid of 'em and I look at 'em steadily eye to eye." Here he fixed such a strong gaze on the landlord that the latter quickly disappeared.

"See that solid, silly-looking fellow over there?" asked the showman, fixing a keen, piercing eye on a ploughboy at the end of the room.

"Yes," was the hushed rejoinder of the bystander; "what are you going to do to 'im?"

"I'm going to fix 'im with my eyes, and make 'im come over to me." He glared fiercely at his "subject." Presently the ploughboy rose and came slowly towards the tamer.

"Didn't I say so?" whispered the showman.

On came the boy. When he was close to the tamer he suddenly planted a well-directed blow on the showman's nose.

"You'll not stare at me like that again, will you?" he said, angrily.

In the Air

C. G. SHAW, Mayor of Missouri City, was talking about a young Missourian who had been divorced seven times.

"Divorce, worse luck, is in the air," he said, "and we breathe it in from childhood.

"A young woman told me the other day that her little son had been rude to his father the afternoon before, and so they had locked the youngster up in his bedroom.

"At dinner time, when his mother carried his dinner to him, she found him writing at his little writing desk.

"'Is that a letter to father asking him to forgive you?' she said.

"'No,' said the youngster haughtily. 'It's a letter to Mayor Shaw to ask him to get me a divorce from the pair of you.'"

A Saving Soul

ACCIDENTS, unfortunately, will happen, even to the best of men, and Jamie Robertson had to have his leg off as a result of one.

But even so he bore up cheerfully, and never once grumbled during the first days after the operation. Instead, he had a sudden brain-wave. He called his wife and asked her to take a note to the advertisement manager of the local paper.

On the following day there appeared the announcement:

"A Scottish gentleman who has lost his left leg would like to meet another who has lost his right and who wears a 10 boot."

The Cautious Motorist

MACTAVISH had bought a second-hand car, and persuaded his next-door neighbor to go for a ride in the country.

They started off gayly enough, but the neighbor was astonished to notice that at every roadside pump MacTavish pulled up and bought half a gallon of gasoline.

"I say," he ventured, "why don't you fill up the tank and put an end to this stopping business?"

"Man," he answered, gravely, "d'ye no ken we micht ha'e an accident, an' then a' the gasoline would be wasted."

Didn't Understand

PHILLIDA had gone to an exhibition of pictures. Not that she knew anything about art, but it was the thing to do.

"Hullo, Miss Phillida," said a clever young artist, as she stood gazing at an oil painting. "I see you are interested in art."

Phillida turned her lovely, vacant eyes on the speaker.

"Me? she said. "Art who?"

THOUGHTS OF THE GREAT—

The wisdom of the wise and the experience of the ages may be preserved by the quotation.—Isaac Disraeli.

When you are in doubt as to whether an action is good or bad, abstain from it.
—Zoroaster.

Insensate and Irrational

By DR. FRANK CRANE.

These words were used, not by some soap box orator, not by some standing minority report, not by some fanatical pacifist or Russian bolshevik, but they were the utterance of Rear Admiral Thomas P. Magruder, one of the old sea dogs of the United States Navy.

The words sound rather extreme and on the whole they are zippy words. The whole sentence he used was that he condemned the "insensate and irrational competition in armaments among nations."

"I believe that further limitation of armaments," he continued, "is one of the most practical 'next steps' that may be taken in seeking a formula whereby war may be avoided.

"Limitation is a deterrent in that there can be no sudden fatal attack by one nation upon another."

At the outbreak of the late war when there was widespread enlisting in the United States Army, scientific gentlemen asserted that "the majority of people in this country are morons." That is, that they had the intelligence of children of 12.

What is intelligence. Perhaps it can best be defined as the ability to learn from our mistakes. A fool steps in the same hole twice and keeps bumping his nose right along on the same post. Even a cat or a dog when they try one thing and get hurt by it learn not to try that thing again.

This is about the only way the world keeps from burning up on hot stoves. People know by experience that a hot stove is not a nice thing to handle and they give it a wide berth.

Fools and morons keep putting their hands on hot stoves and consequently those hands are always scorched.

Now this matter of national defense has been a subject of interest to nations as long as there has been any history.

None of them ever worked it, for the simple reason that they have all kept trying the same thing, and that thing will not work. That thing has been tried over and over countless times and has always resulted in failure. Wouldn't anybody but a moron learn from this kind of recurring fact not to try it again?

Mr. Alexander tried it. His country was marvelously armed for a time and wonderfully successful. Mr. Caesar tried it, but the country that was so admirably defended under him fell at last. See Gibbon's "Decline and Fall."

Spain was one the conquering nation of the world and admirably prepared to resist all comers. Where is Spain?

Russia had a great army.

Perhaps no nation was ever so well prepared to resist an enemy as Germany prior to the late war. Now where is Germany?

So there are so-called "practical" people who insist that the United States should maintain a tremendous army and navy and be fully prepared to resist all who attack her.

The same kind of group exists in other nations.

When will the people of the world become adult-minded enough to perceive that the only defense that amounts to anything is to have friends, to have friendly relations with other people and be able to call on them to help in time of need? To be able to call on friends in time of trouble is better than all the cannon in the world.

OH, THESE WOMEN!

By LEOLA ALLARD.

YOU never hear of women flag pole sitters. They do most of the other things men do, even to trying to fly across the ocean, but they won't flag-pole-sit or be soda-jerkers.

Judge David, of Chicago, has announced that only women have it, and that when they have, no other women can collect alienation money from them in Illinois, because it is, so to speak, a gift from the gods, and they are not to blame to being born that way.

No attractive woman, bristling with it, would want to alienate herself from the world of men, by squatting on a pole away up in the sky for days and weeks, just to see how long she could sit there.

The idea is so silly—to women.

No men to flirt with, no mirrors to look into, no other women to pick apart and gossip with, no nothing but just a sitting place! The front porch is good enough. Many a Lothario has been electrified by a glance at a rose-bordered front porch.

But a flag pole! My word!

All women believe they have it, so the flag pole situation is still controlled by men.

Imagine a woman voluntarily being delivered to a crowd after weeks of flag pole sitting, looking like the rear end of a Kansas cyclone.

That men never had it, will be disputed. It's not other women that keep the ladies lined up in front of movie theaters, waiting for a peek at the next show, while the dishes stand in the sink at home, and the children are parked with neighbors, or turned loose in the street.

Women want to be down on earth, with men all around for to admire and for to see.

The place they like best to sit is on a hotel veranda or on the porch of a country club, where men come and go freely.

Porch sitters, or rocking chair ladies, are called fannies; I don't know why.

Fannies don't think very much—they just talk, and rock and rock.

The favorite occupation of many women who have the right brain to be perfectly corking flag-pole sitters, or soda jerkers, is suing for heart balm, or breach of promise money. Flag pole sitting is too quiet for them while this suing business is a racket.
